Minister of War Obregon and
First Chief at Loggerheads.

(Special to The Herald)

Washington, Oct. 19.—Dissatisfaction in Carranza's army is not confined to minor officers, but also exists among the heads of departments. According to reports received here today General Gonzales at the head of the defacto government in Mexico is in open revolt. The breach between Minister of War Obregon and Carranza is also growing wider, it is stated.

WIND DOES MUCH DAMAGE AT PENSACOLA

Buildings at the Aeronautic
Station Are Considerably Damaged.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Extensive damage was done to the aeronautic station at Pensacola by the high wind yesterday. In the first official report today there was no loss of lives reported. Lieut. Frank McCrary, commandant of the station reported that all of the buildings were damaged, as well as several aeroplanes.

British Steamer North Pacific Reports
That British Cruiser Signalled to That Effect

(Special to The Herald)

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 19.—A report was received here today that a German submarine, supposed to be the U-53, had been destroyed off Nantucket by a British cruiser. The British steamer

North Pacific, while coaling here, reported that she had been signalled by a British cruiser which reported the sinking of a submarine by the following wireless: "German submarine had been destroyed off Nantucket."

Steamship Alumia, which left this port last Saturday, is reported to have been sunk in the English channel. Two hundred passengers were rescued and taken to Falmouth. The crew is still unaccounted for. It is thought she struck a mine.

MIXED CLUBS MAY BE BARRED
AT K. U.

Lawrence, Kansas, Oct. 19.—Asserting that reduced rates were given at many of the boarding houses at the University of Kansas to pretty girls, said to be a valuable attraction to the men students in their choice of places to eat, the Lawrence papers have called attention of the university authorities to the practice. The probable result will be abolition of the "mixed" clubs. If the charges are found to be true, proprietors of several boarding houses have objected to the "mixed" clubs on the ground that the student board at them more for the social side than for practical purposes.

RELATIVES CLAIM YOUNG WOMAN SLAIN

Miss Rose D. Willett Was Thought to Have Committed Suicide.

(Special to The Herald)

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 19.—Miss Rose Delina Willett, the famous New England Conservatory of Music pupil who was found mortally wounded in the coal yard of her brother-in-law John E. Deyette, on September 13, did not commit suicide, but was slain according to the statement of relatives who have come to this city since the young woman's death. These charges were made during a three days' legal battle in which Mrs. Eugene Deyette, sister of the young woman, seeks to obtain a divorce from her husband, and the custody of her three-year-old child.

The arrival of venison from Errol indicates success on the part of local gunners.

OBSERVED THEIR SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Riley of Kittery Point Celebrate 25th Wedding Event.

At their pleasant home on the Harbor road, Kittery Point on Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Riley observed the 25th anniversary of their marriage, nearly one hundred guests being present from Boston, Lynn, Malden, North Berwick, Portsmouth, Kittery, and Kittery Point.

In the receiving line were Mrs. Everett Lewis and William Riley, of Needham, Mass., who were the attendants when Mr. and Mrs. Riley were married. Mrs. Morton Seawards, who played the wedding march on that occasion, was also present.

They were the recipients of many presents, including a purse of silver from their many friends. During the evening refreshments of sandwiches, ice cream, cake and fruit punch were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Riley were married at the Kittery Point Free Will Baptist church on Oct. 18, 1891, by Rev. C. M. Anderson. Mr. Riley was for eleven years employed on the Atlantic Shore Street Railway as a motorman and by his uniform courtesy made many friends. He is at present employed on the Portsmouth navy yard. He is a member of Constitution Lodge, No. 88, Knights of Pythias of Kittery. Mrs. Riley, prior to her marriage, was Miss Louisa L. Spinnery of Malden, Mass. Both Mr. and Mrs. Riley have many friends who hope that they may live to celebrate their golden wedding.

Among those present were: Mrs. Mary Wilson Fernald, Mr. W. Haven Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Call, Hon. and Mrs. Horace Mitchell, Mr. Herbert Billings, Mr. and Mrs. Burton T. Hoyt, Mr. and Mrs. John Tucker, Mrs. Lavina Colby and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. John Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Smith Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Thurston Patch, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Paul, Mr. Beverly Fernald, Mrs. Emma Magee, Mr. and Mrs. William Chisholm of Winthrop; Mr. and Mrs. George Spinnery, Mr. O. CONTINUE THE FIGHTING IN DEEP MUD

French Forces Concentrate
Their Position at Sailly-Sallinsels.

(Special to The Herald)

Paris, Oct. 19.—Ceasing for the time being their attacks on the region of Bapaume, the French drove forward during the night against the German forces in the Tyrone region and made progress. The war office today reported that the French attacked in force between Blaches and La Maisonnette, where the Germans were compelled to fall back. North of the Somme the French have completed the concentration of their forces at their newly established position at Sailly-Sallinsels. The Germans made counter attacks, but were easily repulsed. The heavy rains have made operations very difficult and the latest fighting has taken place in deep mud and shell craters have been transformed into miniature lakes.

FINE PROGRAM AT SECOND DAY OF CONVENTION

MIDDLE STREET BAPTIST CHURCH WHERE CONVENTION IS BEING HELD

Interesting Program and Demonstration Given By the Junior Delegates at Morning Session-Next Session to Be Held at Dover

The second and concluding day of the twentieth annual convention of the New Hampshire Branch of the International Order of King's Daughters, in session at the Middle Street Baptist church, was well attended and the exercises were of an exceptionally interesting character.

The devotional service was led by Mrs. Frank W. Emerson of Hampstead. Roll call was given for the benefit of those who were unable to respond on Wednesday. In answering each one gave a report of the work of her individual circle.

Miss Farnsworth presided as on Tuesday and letters and telegrams were read by the recording secretary, Miss Woodbury of Nashua, which included one from Mrs. Evans, the National president.

An invitation to hold the next convention in Dover was read and it was unanimously voted to accept.

Miss Grace Conner of this city gave a report of the attendance which declared three international officers to be present and two council members. 37 circles to be represented with a total attendance of 119.

Mrs. Farnsworth then referred to the new banner which had been made for the New Hampshire organization and it was approved by a motion.

Miss Abby Fiske, a council member of Concord, described in a splendid paper the extension work. She said she had in person visited 53 circles and that the circles were becoming more closely linked together in their work and better acquainted with each other personally.

Knowledge of each other is necessary, she declared. It promotes loyalty and understanding strengthens branch work, encourages junior work, promotes literature and benefits the magazine. She praised the work done in the rural conditions of the state and reported helpful, sincere work in all parts of the state. She emphasized the religious aspect of the order and warned them against putting the social side of it to the front. Keep first things first.

A convention is especially helpful, she said. It instills into the delegates

BACKBONE OF OIL STRIKE IS BROKEN

More Than 12,000 Bayonne
Strikers Return to Their Work on Thursday.

(Special to The Herald)

Bayonne, N. J., Oct. 19.—More than 12,000 of the striking employees of the Standard Oil Company returned to their work today. The backbone of the strike, which has caused considerable rioting is believed to be broken. No violence attended the return of the strikers to their work. Police and firemen armed with rifles guarded the men as they returned to work. All saloons are still closed. Superintendent Hennessey of the Standard Oil Company announced today that he would give those who are still out until 7 o'clock tomorrow morning, to report for duty. After that their places will be filled by new men. The entire town is heavily policed and every precaution is being taken to prevent a repetition of the rioting.

SENATE COMMITTEE CHAIRMANSHIP

(By William R. Wilcox, Chairman Republican National Committee.)

In numerous statements Chairman McCormick of the Democratic National Committee has published doubtful predictions of disaster should the Republicans again obtain control of the United States Senate, pointing out that the important committee chairmanships would be "hossed" to the head of the Finance Committee; Warren of Wyoming, chairman of Appropriations Committee; Smoot of Utah, chairman of Public Lands Committee; Lodge of Massachusetts, at the head of the Committee on Foreign Relations; Duffont of Delaware, chairman of the Military Affairs Committee; William Alden Smith, of Michigan, heading the Committee on Naval Affairs; Weeks of Massachusetts, chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee; Nelson of Minnesota, at the head of the Commerce Committee, and last, but not least, Gallagher of New Hampshire, President Pro Tem of the senate and Chairman of the Committee on Rules.

Comparisons may be odious but the personnel of prospective chairmen given by Mr. McCormick compares very favorably in experience, ability and disposition to faithfully promote the best interests of the country, with the list of Democrats now holding these chairmanships.

The present chairman of the Finance Committee is Farnford McLendon Simmons of North Carolina, who shares with Oscar Underwood the onus of the Underwood tariff law. His opposed putting sugar on the free list but was plastic in the hands of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan who forced the Democrats on the House Ways and Means and Senate Finance Committee to yield on sugar, an action they were forced to repudiate after less than two years' operation of the Underwood law almost ruined the sugar industry of Louisiana and deprived the U. S. treasury of some $60,000,000 in receipts. Senator Penrose, who would succeed Senator Simmons, is not only a champion of the policy of protection for American industries, Southern as well as Northern, but he is regarded in the senate as the best qualified of its members to direct the proceedings of the Finance Committee. He certainly would be an improvement upon Farnford McLendon Simmons.

The present chairman of the Appropriations Committee is Thomas Staples Martin of Virginia. Appropriations, omitting the Panama Canal expenditures, during the four years of Mr. Martin's chairmanship compared with appropriations during the preceding four years during which Mr. Warren was chairman of the same senate committee follow:

Warren
1910	$291,565,750.91
1911	334,557,921.45
1912	330,522,552.63
1913	325,336,469.06

Total $1,282,982,693.99

Martin
1914	$1,032,107,555.41
1915	1,091,275,413.55
1916	1,095,367,963.72
1917	1,621,513,257.93

Total $5,840,253,189.61

Senator Martin claimed in the senate that preparedness appropriations for 1917 aggregated $400,000,000 and should be deducted from the aggregate of appropriations for his last four years' service. Granting his contention he still overtops Senator Warren's record of $746,768,186.62. With Warren as chairman instead of Martin possibly the country would be spared "war taxes" in time of "peace" and increasing burdensome taxation upon all kinds of business and industry.

Dimmy is expressed should Senator Smoot of Utah, displace Senator Myers of Montana as chairman of the State Public Lands Committee. Senator Smoot is recognized in the senate by Democrats as well as Republicans as one of the most conscientious and efficient members. He has been mid as a conservationist in public and matters and legislation in which he would have a leading part would be along lines of conservation.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts would succeed William J. Stone of Missouri, as Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. A consummate devotee to be wished. Senator Lodge is a scholarly diplomat, an acknowledged authority on foreign matters, a dignified, effective debater, who commanded the respect of his colleagues in the senate regardless of party. In comparing him with Senator Stone it is sufficient to say that the latter does not have the confidence of his colleagues in the senate either of the Democratic or Republican faith. Witness the remarks of Senator Hardwick (Democrat) recently when he said on the floor of the senate: "If I were able to submit in silence to the strictures of

C. E. BREWSTER & CO. PRAISE ABBEY'S SALTS

Messrs. C. E. Brewster & Co., of the greater part of his duties have been delegated to Senator Swainson their friends for telling them the value of Abbey's Salts.

Before the public many years, they are the surest method of relieving and preventing Headaches, Migrations, Dyspepsia, Constipation, and the many more serious diseases which Auto Intoxication brings on.

A spoonful of the granules in a glass of water taken eight and morning for about a week or ten days will give you a new understanding of the delight of perfect health.

Abbey's, by the way, is packed in the new size bottle but at the same old price.

We suggest that you call at your druggist's and try a bottle of these salts.

The senator from Missouri (Mr. Stone) I should have very little respect for myself. The senator's strictures are worth but little, unless, perchance, they should happen to come to the ears of some one who does not understand the senator and his uncontrolled and unlimited capacity for lecturing both his Republican and his Democratic associates in his Chamber. Senator Hardwick intimated in the same address that the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, Mr. Stone, was more of a joke than anything else. The latest public comment upon Senator Stone is that of Mr. Victor F. Ridder who said:

"Can anything be more humiliating than the spectacle of the Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee—the Senate quinquennial in a small room of a Third Avenue beer garden and bartering for the votes which the President front the platform of Shadow Lawn, in his speech of acceptance, has repudiated?"

Senator Du Pont who would be Chairman of the State Military Affairs Committee, filed that position with credit and ability before he was succeeded by the present chairman, Senator Chamberlain of Oregon. Senator Du Pont was an honor graduate of West Point. He served throughout the Civil War, participating in scores of battles. He was awarded a Congressional medal of honor for "most distinguished gallantry" in battle. As former chairman and as a member of the Senate Military Committee he has taken an important part in military legislation and he is far better fitted by experience to conduct the affairs of the committee than its present chairman, who has no military training or service.

Due to unfortunate physical disabilities the present chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, Benjamin R. Tillman of South Carolina, is not able to conduct its affairs personally and the greater part of his duties have been delegated to Senator Swainson of Virginia. Should Senator William Alden Smith succeed to the chairmanship the effectiveness of the committee would be enhanced and not impaired. Senator Smith has had extended experience in navy legislation in the senate and house and by comparison does not suffer in ability or patriotism with either Senator Tillman or Senator Swainson.

Should Senator Weeks of Massachusetts succeed Robert L. Owen, of Oklahoma, as chairman of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency, the business interests of the country would unanimously endorse and commend the change, for Mr. Weeks represents conservatism in business and Mr. Owen radicalism bordering on socialism.

If Senator Knute Nelson should become Chairman of the Committee on Commerce instead of Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida, the logical Democratic successor to the late Senator Clarke, of Arkansas, the commercial interests of the country would be well served and benefited.

Mr. McCormick expresses alarm at the prospect of Senator Gallinger becoming Chairman of the Senate Rules Committee in place of Senate Overman of North Carolina. This alarming view demonstrates that Mr. McCormick is not well posted on senate affairs for the Rules Committee originates no legislation and considers none. In a way, the Rules Committee chairmanship is an honorary position and Senator Gallinger who is dear of the senate, could fill it with dignity and honor.

Legislation for the benefit of the entire country will follow the election of Mr. Hughes to the presidency and the return of control to congress to the Republican party, and the tone, dignity and efficiency of the United States senate will be improved by the changes Mr. McCormick deprecates.

HAVERHILL CITY OFFICIALS TAKE AN APPEAL.

Salem, Oct. 18.—Notice of an appeal from the order of Judge Quinn of the superior court is refusing a motion to quash indictments against Mayor Albert L. Bartlett and other members of the Haverhill city council became known today. The papers were filed by counsel for the city officials late yesterday, after the court had sustained the indictments charging failure to suppress a riot at Haverhill on the night of April 3. As a result of the appeal, it is expected the cases will not come to trial for several months.

NEW HEARING IN CARPENTER CASE

Four Questions Will Be Argued at Concord Monday.

Judge Kivel of Dover has called a hearing in Concord next Monday, at which four points in dispute will be argued in connection with the Carpenter divorce case. The hearing will be held at the Middlesex county court house and the arguments will doubtless be made by General Frank Streeter representing Mrs. Marguerite Paul Carpenter and Attorney Nathan F. Smith, counsel for Ralph G. Carpenter.

The four questions to be considered will be as follows: First, as to the ability of certain witnesses to observe what transpired at the Gables cottage, to which they testified at the hearing; second, if their evidence be stricken out, is there sufficient evidence remaining to support a finding of adultery on the part of the libelee; third, as to the question of cohabitation; and fourth, as to the question of condonation.

REAL PRO GOLF CHAMP

Meet Jim Barnes, all you golfers! He is a professional, but he knows golf. Yes, he plays for money prizes and he is not ashamed of it. He is just like a baseball player—he doesn't play for mere fun. But he plays real golf. If you want to see real baseball you don't watch a college slug; you go up to Boston and see champions. Mr. Barnes is the winner of the professional tournament at the Stowbury Country Club at Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Of course, the national open golf championship won by "Chick" Evans, recently goes as the greatest golfing event of the year. But many of those who saw Barnes win this even figure him as the real golf champion of the United States.

JAMES BARNES

CAPT. W. H. RUSH, U. S. N., TO RETIRE NOVEMBER 1ST.

Boston, Oct. 18.—Capt. William R. Rush, formerly commandant at the Charlestown Navy Yard, and for 41 1-2 years an active official in the United States navy, will retire from service on half-pay the first of next month. Capt. Rush received word from Washington today that his petition for retirement had been signed by President Wilson. There is a touch of disappointment in Capt. Rush's departure from the service.

A short time ago he took an examination at Newport for promotion to rear admiral. Before he had received his standing President Wilson signed a naval bill, making promotion to rear admiralship by appointment instead of graduation. This brought about Capt. Rush's retirement.

It is rumored he will be succeeded by Capt. Charles P. Plunkett, recently director of gunnery exercises and engineering performance at Washington and formerly commander of the dreadnought North Dakota.

COTTAGE DESTROYED AT HAMPTON BEACH.

The two-and-one-half story cottage, together with its contents at Hampton Beach, the property of Dr. J. A. Golden of Lawrence, Mass., was completely destroyed by fire Wednesday morning. The cottage was unoccupied at the time and no cause for the fire is known. The building is valued at $1500, partially covered by insurance.

WILSON HAS BROKEN MOST OF HIS PLEDGES

Col. Roosevelt Makes Sweeping Charges in Speech at Louisville, Ky., Against President Wilson's Conduct

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 18.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, delivered a speech this evening before one of the most enthusiastic audiences in support of the candidacy of Charles Evans Hughes of New York for the presidency of the United States. Col. Roosevelt made a sweeping charge that President Wilson had broken his pre-election promises as well as the promises of his party as made in the platform on which he was elected.

Col. Roosevelt spent a considerable amount of time on the Mexican policy of President Wilson and quoted from the New York World, the one paper making a consistent fight for the reelection of the president, in support of his contentions.

He said in part:—
At the outset of my speech I wish to point out, as I have elsewhere pointed out, that the doctrine now often advanced as to the propriety of criticizing the President, without any regard as to whether the criticism is or is not just, has no warrant either in history or on grounds of public morality. Andrew Jackson in a message to the Senate on April 15th, 1833, put the case exactly as it should be put, he said:

"The President is accountable at the bar of public opinion for every act of his administration. Subject only to the restraints of truth and justice, the free people of the United States have the undoubted right, as individuals or collectively, orally or in writing, at such times and in such language and form as they may think proper, to discuss his official conduct, and express and promulgate their opinions concerning it."

"This lays down the law that should be followed. There must be truth and justice in all that is said of the President, or of any one else; but less than any one other man in the nation has the right to claim immunity from any criticism that is both just and truthful. I criticize President Wilson because his deeds have belied his words, and his words have belied one another."

Mr. Wilson's promises before election, both those made in his own speeches, and those made in the platform, have been so well-nigh invariably broken, that the breaking of them has become a subject for jest even among his own friends. One of Mr. Wilson's prominent Democratic supporters in Congress stated, with refreshing frankness the exact truth about Mr. Wilson's pre-election promises, and those made on his behalf, when in answer to some charge of inconsistency, he responded by saying that "Our platform was made to get into office on—and we have won." It is impossible to study Mr. Wilson's pre-election promises, and post-election performances; it is impossible to compare the diametrically opposed attitudes he has assumed at different times on almost every public question; it is impossible to compare what he says in one set of speeches with what he says in another set, without feeling that what this congressional supporter of his said of his platform applies also to his speeches.

A high-minded man regards a promise made on the stump by a candidate for office, a promise intended to secure the support of those to whom it is made, as a pledge which it is as imperatively necessary to redeem as if it were made in private life to a private individual; and its subsequent repudiation in one case can only be justified by conditions substantially like those which would justify it in the other case. An honorable man keeps faith in public life no less than in private life.

President Wilson's speeches are notable for adroit indirect suggestion and avoidance of downright statement. But the other day at Omaha he seemed to have committed himself to the statement that he was "willing to fight," but was "waiting for something worth fighting for" for something which would "put all the corpuscles of his blood into shouting shape." It would be interesting to know exactly what outrage on American citizens, or on the rights of humanity anywhere, which would make him cross the line between being "willing to fight" and "too proud to fight." He certainly did not regard the treacherous murder of Boyd and Adair, and this United States, as "something worth fighting for." He did not even write a note about it. The murder of 1391 men, women and children on the Lusitania did not "put all the corpuscles of his blood into shouting shape." His corpuscles did not shout; they did not even whisper; apparently all they did was to suggest to him that it was a happy occasion for his classic remark about being "too proud to fight." I am tempted to think that Mr. Wilson did himself an injustice when he said that he was "willing to fight" either for any great cause or on account of any wrong hereafter done to this country; and that the truth was expressed the other day by his eager eulogist, Secretary Baker, when he said that he was "glad" that "no one could insult Mr. Wilson and make him go to war." Unquestionably General Carranza, and probably Herr von Tirpitz, heartily agree with Secretary Baker—and deep in his own heart I am inclined to believe that Mr. Wilson himself also agrees with him.

Two of Mr. Wilson's most distinguished champions, one official and one non-official, take the same view. Secretary Lane stated that the fact that "American citizens have been killed by outlaws and bandits" was a proper subject for "much regret" but not for "sacrificing the blood of our sons." Dr. Charles W. Eliot, former President of Harvard, praises Mr. Wilson for having made a "great contribution to the peace of the world and to the promotion of humane and just dealings between nations," by having "gone far to establish as the American policy the policy of non-intervention by force of arms for the protection of miners, commercial adventurers, inventors and workmen in foreign parts," and by having refused to adopt the "malicious suggestion" to protect the lives of these men "by punitive expeditions and compelled agreements." Reduced to concrete terms, this statement of Dr. Eliot is that President Wilson is greatly to be praised because he took no action when some nineteen line, unoffending, hard-working and totally unarmed, American miners and engineers, were taken from a railroad train, tortured and murdered by an armed Mexican force. Dr. Eliot has been a severe censor of political morality, strong in his condemnation of bosses, crooked politicians, and demagogic labor leaders; but no corrupt boss, no crooked politician or labor leader, no conscienceless capitalist, has ever preached or practiced a more degrading doctrine, a doctrine more ruinous to the soul and the manhood of this nation, or more destructive to humanity and justice in the world at large, than the doctrine thus set forth by this former College President. American women are raped and American children murdered in Mexico; American men are tortured to death; hundreds of our people are slain; continual forays are made into our territory; Mexico itself is utterly devastated and its people slaughtered by the hundred thousand; and Dr. Eliot denounces as a "malicious suggestion" any proposal to put a stop to these horrors in the only way by which it is possible to stop them. If he really represents the American people, then let us by all means abandon the Monroe Doctrine, and preparedness, and patriotism and every form of malice, national and individual; let us leave Mexico to be set straight by Germany or England or Japan; and let us all in helpless folly at home until some virile nation makes us what we would under such conditions deserve to be made—the hewers of wood and drawers of water for alien conquerors. But if we Americans are fit sons of our stars, if we are worthy of our forefathers of the days of Washington, if we are entitled to claim kinship with the valiant souls who wore the blue in the armies of Grant or the gray in the armies of Lee, let us treat such counsel with the deep suspicion the President who has earned such support.

The exact value of the Mexican "good will" which President Wilson has obtained by his policy of lane submission to the murder and outrage of our citizens can be gathered from the following statement in one of his chief newspaper organs, the New York World, of Oct. 10th:

"CARRANZA ENVOYS IN FIRMER ATTITUDE"

"H-Boat Exploits Give Them Hope That We Shall Have More Complications."

(From a Staff Correspondent of the World.)

"Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 9.—The activities of German submarines off the American coast and the possibility that another crisis may arise between the United States and Germany had an appreciable effect upon the Carranza delegates here today.

"The Carranza delegates were elated at the prospect of this country being involved in further international entanglements, and their attitude stiffened considerably."

This statement is well worth serious consideration. It comes from one of President Wilson's close organs. It shows that the Carranza Government, which owes its very existence to President Wilson, eagerly waits the opportunity to join with any hostile world power against us. This is the fine flower of President Wilson's policy in Mexico. He has permitted the country to be ruined and its people decimated. He has permitted our own people to be murdered unchecked. He has prostituted our national honor to the bandits whose cause he has espoused. And he has won from these bandits only a venomous and treacherous hostility to the United States.

In speaking of the case of Belgium and the European war situation he said in closing:

"Instead of speaking softly and carrying a big stick, President Wilson spoke bombastically and carried a dagger. For these offenses against us I blame the Germans, for nothing can excuse their jeopardizing and taking the lives of men, women and children; and I do not believe that under like circumstances we would have done what they have done. For their less heinous offenses against our property rights I blame the British, but I blame them much less, and I do believe that under like circumstances we would have acted in the same way. If other nations would have let us, but I blame the United States even more than I blame Germany, for in our case there has been no splendid alloy of heroism to offset the wrong-doing. Our offenses have been those of cold, short-sighted selfishness and of a meanness which has invited, and has therefore been partly responsible for the German and British offenses against us. We could have stopped them had we had any real leadership in Washington; and we shown any firmness of soul and readiness to make effort and encounter risk for high ideals. 'Keep us out of war!' if the Wilson administration could point to one sacrifice this nation has made for the right, to one indication of willingness to face loss on behalf of a principle, it might deserve some credit. But it deserves none. Thanks to President Wilson, we have shown our selves too craven to stand up for our own rights, or for the rights of weak peoples. If we had done as we ought to have done, our neutrality would ship. But let it be understood from the beginning that never can we or any other nation take such a position unless there is both preparation in advance, and also the willingness to sacrifice something in order to compel the observance of the nation's own sovereign rights, and in addition to

Addressed to Charles M. Schwab Commercial Giant

Dear Mr. Schwab:—

It may sound far-fetched to you, but it is a fact nevertheless, that your aggressive advertising of your armor-plate has forced the American people to regard you in a new light. They knew you were a big steel merchant, but they didn't realize before that you are a great big man. And they believe you absolutely. Your courageous statements have been too forceful and too sincere to be misunderstood.

I fully expect you to believe what I say about Lord Salisbury Cigarettes just as I believe you when you say you can—and will—make armor-plate at a less price than the Government can make it in a plant of its own.

The Lord Salisbury Cigarette is the first 100% pure Turkish Tobacco Cigarette (see guarantee on package) to sell at the low price of 15c for 20. Therefore it is an achievement—it brings together quality, quantity and economy. And that's what you do in the making of armor-plate.

Now Mr. Schwab

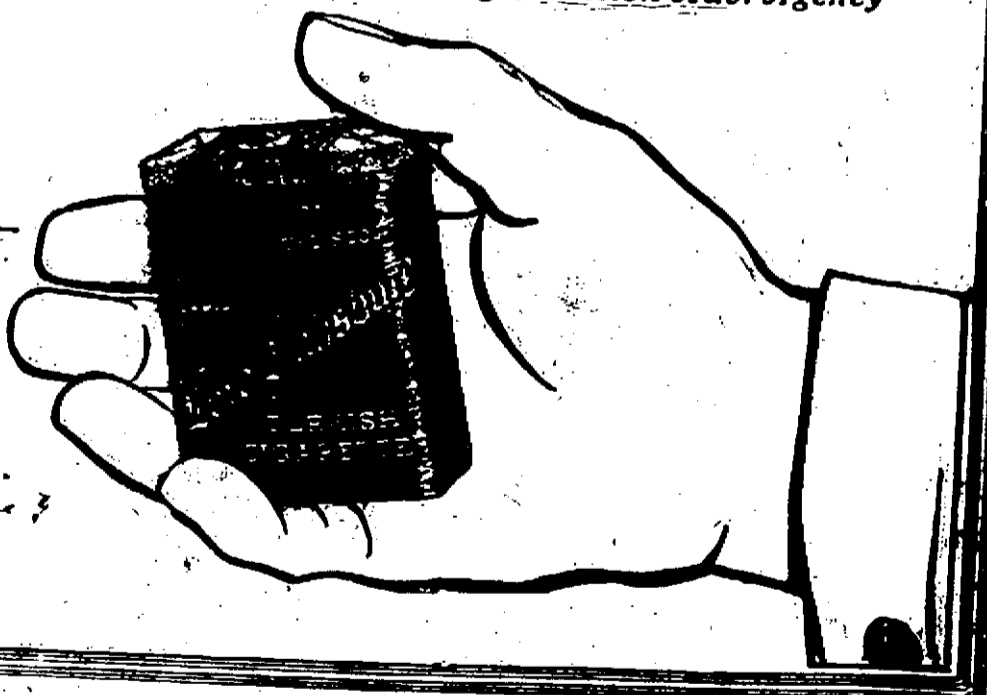

The American Tobacco Company is entitled to credit for this material progress, and I think when the people become familiar with the facts, they will regard the Lord Salisbury Cigarette as a big solution of a big problem? Our propositions are similar because I know the Government can't establish a plant of its own and equal Lord Salisbury Cigarettes at our price.

I believe The American Tobacco Company has done a big thing in creating this cigarette—just as any big concern does a big thing when it helps to reduce the cost of living while still maintaining a standard. That's always big isn't it, Mr. Schwab?

Cordially yours,

GERMANY ON HER BACK, SAYS ATLANTA MAN

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 18.—The Allies have Germany on her back and it will be only a few months before the Teutons sue for peace, according to Paul Rockwell, brother of the American aviator, Kilpin Rockwell of Atlanta, who was recently killed in France. Writing from Paris he says: "The war is running along well for us. The Allies have Germany on her back fighting for life. It is only a matter of months before the Hun will be so well licked that they will not trouble Europe for many generations. Every day the Allies are getting stronger and every day the Germans are growing weaker. The spirit of France is more wonderful than ever."

CHIPS FROM THE CLAY

(By Peter P. Carney)

Neaf Aggar has been elected president of the Westy Hogans for the eleventh time. Eighteen states now prohibit the killing of female deer. Canada leases lakes and hunting grounds in the Province of Quebec for the asking. The Westy Hogans is an organization made up of professional trapshooters. In New York licensed hunters must wear conspicuously displayed a button two inches in diameter, which is furnished by the state. With the merging of the Alleghany Sportsman's Association and the Cheat Mountain club, 90,000 acres of the finest hunting and fishing preserves in the East and South are joined together. They are at the head-water of the Cheat and Elk Rivers in Virginia.

Successful trapshots are made only by application and study.

Join a gun club early and then watch the veterans shoot if you wish to progress.

Trapshooters know the rules of their sport much better than the participants in any other sport.

If every trap boy was docked a nickel for every target he carelessly broke in loading his trap not only would he soon put himself in line for promotion, but a sad little leak would be plugged in the club treasury.

Club managers are you alive to the fact that you can get more for a target barrel nicely rounded up with empty shot-gun shells than you paid for the same barrel full of clay targets?

Portsmouth, N. H., Thursday, October 19, 1916.

The Age of Wonders.

The world series baseball games have demonstrated once more that this game is indeed the great national sport. Interest in the progress and outcome of these games was as widespread as the country. It was not diminished in the least by the exciting news of the foreign war, the operations of a U-boat along the Atlantic coast and the growing warmth of the presidential campaign. For nearly a week the country was bound in the grip of baseball, which in public interest transcended all other matters for the time being.

But how few have stopped to think of the wonderful success that was reached in reporting these games. Telegraphy has accomplished great things in the past, but never before was the country served as it was on this occasion. Wire connections were made covering 18,000 miles and from the diamond news of every play was flashed the length and breadth of the country as soon as it was made. Press representatives on the ground dictated messages to the operator and the news was received simultaneously in Duluth, San Francisco and New Orleans, and at all intermediate points that had been connected with this remarkable service. The result was that the whole country was kept as well posted on the progress of the games as were the spectators on the grounds. In many places the games were practically reproduced by means developed in recent years and the entire country gave a large part of the week to the national game.

People became excited and shouted themselves hoarse over brilliant plays, unconscious of the much more remarkable work that was being done in silence by the telegraph wires. It is difficult for the ordinary mind to comprehend such an accomplishment. We know that it was done, and that is all that most people do know or care about it. Telegraphy is not spectacular, but it is far more wonderful than baseball or any other game that ever has been or ever will be played.

Within the last year telephone lines have been connected so that conversations and concerts have been heard across the continent. Apparently wonders will never cease. The moving picture is one of the wonders of the age, but because it has become so commonplace people have ceased to wonder at it. Will the time come when some genius will discover a way of reproducing by this means baseball games at the time they are played, thus placing the "World's Series" within reach of every city in the country? Such a prediction would now seem extravagant, but we must remember that there is apparently no limit to the power of invention.

The young Massachusetts soldier who was sentenced to six months in a federal prison, with the loss of his citizenship, for writing an objectionable letter from the Mexican front, has been pardoned. The sentence struck the country as unduly severe. The congressman from the district in which the young man lives took up the matter and has succeeded in securing the pardon, which meets with the approval of all who object to Kaiserism in America.

According to a government report, profits in the retail meat business run from 8 to 38 per cent., depending somewhat upon whether the meats come from the packing houses or direct from the farms. Where farmers sell to the butchers they get from 62 to 84 per cent. of the gross receipts. Taking everything into consideration, there is nothing in these figures to show that the retailers are "hogging it" to any great extent.

Sportsmen this fall find the price of shells much higher than formerly, all on account of the war of course, but this will not be allowed to interfere with the sport. In most places crackling leaves and a scarcity of game are more troublesome. And in view of the high price of ammunition special pains should be taken to waste as little as possible on the human family.

An aviator is reported to have met with considerable success in duck hunting with his machine near Atlantic City, but many will wonder how he gathers his game after shooting it. But perhaps he runs the ducks down and catches 'em alive. It was reported some time ago that an aviator in the European war service was catching swallows that way.

To many $25,000,000 seems like a big price for the Danish West Indies, but there is nothing small about those who make the sale to the United States. They will throw in the hurricanes.

If the next Congress does not "see red" it is liable to see red hair, a woman with that sort of crown being a candidate for election in Montana with a fair prospect of success, according to reports.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

"These Ignorant Foreigners."
(From the Boston Traveler)

Three men were arraigned before Magistrate Appleton in New York city, charged with smoking in a factory. Two of them were fined $20 each. A third, addressing the court, explained: "My case is different from those others. I was born in America and am well educated. You should have more consideration for me, because I am not an ignorant foreigner like those others."

The magistrate was equal to his duty and fined the man $30, instead of $20 on the ground that the native-born offender should have known enough to obey the law. The case is a fairly typical one. How many native-born Americans, intelligent and educated, assume that they have a right to do, contrary to law, that which ignorant foreigners should not be permitted to do.

Only this week in this city one of the most dangerous and persistent automobile speeders was heard declaiming in a public place concerning the indignity of ignorant foreigners who shoot game out of season. In his opinion, apparently, it is all right for intelligent Americans, knowing the law, to defy the law at the risk of human life, but for a foreigner who does not know the law the shooting of a bird should be enough to consign him to solitary imprisonment.

"Pitiless Publicity."

(From the Manchester Mirror)
The "pitiless publicity" promised by Woodrow Wilson, candidate for the presidency, has, almost from the beginning of his administration, amounted to nothing more or less than culpable suppression. Only now, two years after the events, has it become public that Huerta appealed to President Wilson to submit the question of annulling the flag of the United States in abdication under the terms of the Huerta convention and that Huerta actually offered to salute the flag provided the United States would return the salute and that again Mr. Wilson refused, preferring to seize Vera Cruz. Only recently have President Wilson's instructions to John Lind that Huerta must be driven from Mexico and that was the sole purpose of the administration, become public. The policy of suppression is still being pursued. No one can find out whether John Lind is still being paid a salary from the secret fund of the state department. Only recently has secretary Redfield suppressed facts regarding the manufacture of dyes, which facts were of vital importance to American manufacturers. Until exposed, Secretary Daniels tried persistently to suppress the facts regarding his abandonment of Americans in danger at Tampico. Again, until exposed, Daniels wilfully suppressed the report of the navy general board on the navy's lack of preparedness. There are rumors about regarding defective shells made by an inexperienced concern in Daniels' home town, and Daniels suppresses the facts. There are rumors of a secret report showing the inefficiency of the submarine batteries made by Daniels' friend, Edison, but Daniels suppresses the facts. And Secretary Baker, not to be outdone, persistently suppresses the report made to him by Dr. Darrington on the conditions of the militia on the border, although there are thousands of wives and mothers and children vitally interested in the contents of that report.

Boosting New Hampshire

(From N. H. News and Crafts)
The slogan "Boost the Granite State" has been adopted by the New Hampshire Good Roads Association, and it is a slogan of much merit. Yet it will have to be remembered that good roads are but a means to an end. If we were wrecked on a Robinson Crusoe lonely island the first thing to bother would be that of food, next a cave or some kind of shelter. Afterwards, when the sun had on began to wear out, he would have to provide more clothing. In time he might need a good highway to help provide the three essential things of life. We have long since got by the "lonely island" state and good roads are essential to help us get the food, shelter and clothing, but to attain actual prosperity we must not neglect our agriculture, house building and manufacturing. If we are to really boost New Hampshire we must boost all along the line. Is it not so?

CURRENT OPINION

Proper Place to Teach Agriculture Is in the Elementary School.

We have fostered a system of education which has trained the boys and girls away from the farm and driven them to overcrowded professions and trades in the city.

We have taught, or, rather, have pretended to teach, about everything in our public schools except the one most essential thing, the one basic thing—namely, agriculture. That we have left to the agricultural colleges, which are doing excellent work, but which reach the smallest fraction of one per cent of the boys who engage in farming.

And the farm girl—the one upon whom, more than upon the boy, depends the success of the farm—we have almost overlooked her, so far as instruction in home and farm economies is concerned.

Our system of education has attracted the brightest of our boys and girls away from farm life.

In short, we have failed utterly as a nation to educate our boys and girls for the farm at the only time of their lives when they can be properly taught and at the proper place to teach them—namely, while in the elementary school.

season, among other crops, 500 barrels of apples, 600 bushels of potatoes and 500 bushels of beans. He keeps no cows, and buys the milk he uses in the family. His income from the crops mentioned would buy any one of nine out of every ten farms in this vicinity. We heard of another farmer who was offered $75 for six lambs this fall. It is not to be expected that every farmer can raise crops like the Lebanon farmer, or lambs which will sell for over $12 a head, but there is no doubt that about every farmer can improve his opportunities much better than he has been doing. If they will get out of the old ruts a little, and not be afraid to make a little investment in the spring in commercial fertilizers and putting in crops, they will get their returns in an increased harvest in the fall and make their farms worth much more. And when it is demonstrated what may be done on the farm, some of those now lying idle will find purchasers and be tilled.

Legislation Touching Speed.

(From the Lebanon Democrat)
The accident at Nashua last Thursday, when an experienced driver, the agent of a high-priced car, running on a straight road, was forced to smash his car into a telephone pole with disastrous results, to avoid running down a boy on a wobbling bicycle, may result in some legislation during the coming winter to hold bicycle riders to a stricter account of the use of the public highways. In the Nashua case the driver declared that it was a case of either killing the boy or striking the pole, and cases of this kind are by no means rare. Many bicyclists, it is claimed, bother motorists for the sport of the thing, much the same as dogs run in front of cars barking and seeing how near they can come without getting touched. The matter seems a difficult one to reach by law or regulation, but many motorists hope to see something accomplished.

Hughes on Adamson Bill

(From the Dover Democrat)
Gov. Hughes continues to pour hot shot into the administration because of the Adamson bill, asserting at New York, that it was nothing less than deception to call it an "eight-hour bill." Mr. Hughes quoted the statement of Senator Underwood of Alabama in the Senate debate. Replying to another Senator, Mr. Underwood said: "If the Senator would go and consult with any of the gentlemen who represent the employees and who have been contending here in this matter, they would tell him candidly, as they told me, that the question is a question of wage; that they are not contending for an eight-hour day, that a do not want that."

Mr. Hughes is showing up in conclusive manner the absolute hypocrisy man shall work only eight hours, they of President Wilson's persistent misrepresentation of the Adamson bill as an "eight-hour" bill. "What is the purpose of this attempt to make the public believe that this bill fixes an eight-hour work day?" inquired Mr. Hughes, answering his own question thus, "Manifestly, in order to endeavor to justify this extraordinary action of the administration in its abject, and humiliating surrender of principle in demanding and securing this legislation without any proper inquiry, as the price of peace. Evidently, it is felt that a wage increase could not be justified in this manner. What is fair and right can afford to be described correctly and can stand on its merits." Referring to President Wilson's assertion that "the eight-hour day has the sanction of the judgment of society" Mr. Hughes demanded to know, if that was true and the bill had been an eight-hour bill, now President Wilson dared to limit the right-hour benefit to 20 per cent of the most highly paid railway employees and leave all the others to work far longer hours. He also warned the labor men that the Adamson bill was very likely to prove a boomerang to labor, because with eight hours made the basis of a day's work, those men who completed their runs in less than eight hours were in grave danger of being compelled to turn to other work and put in the full eight hours.

RUSSIAN COMPANY AT BOSTON OPERA HOUSE

The Daghileff Ballet Russe, the same troop which conquered Paris, London, Berlin and Vienna, and which created a sensation in New York and Boston last season will appear at the Boston Opera house for two performances only, the week of November 6.

The Russian company is greatly strengthened this season by the accession of Nijinsky, the greatest of all dancers who will positively appear at least five times during the week. The troop will consist of a hundred dancers of whom nearly a score are solo dancers, and a complete Symphony Orchestra. The scenery which is one of the glories of the Russian Ballet is by Leon Bakst.

The repertoire of the Russian Company will include about fourteen ballets of which seven have never been given in Boston and four are new to this country. The ballets include "Till Eulenspiegel," a rhapsody of the tone poem by Richard Strauss, which was performed at the Boston Symphony concert last week. It was composed by Nijinsky during his captivity in Austria. Another work of Nijinsky's is the very remarkable ballet set to Liszt's Mephisto Valse, than which no

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS
President American Society for Thrift

The college is one of the best places to exercise frugality. Here there are strong temptations for money spending, and the youth who is strong minded enough to save during his university days will, without doubt, be a successful man when he enters the great world of affairs. Some of our most successful Americans worked their way through college, and it is interesting to note what is being done along this line. A notable instance of heroic thrift comes from the University of Arkansas, located in that portion of the United States where thrift is particularly necessary. Almost one half of the men and a somewhat smaller per cent of the women enrolled in the State University of Arkansas are supporting themselves in whole or in part. There is a student labor fund appropriated by the Legislature, and students are employed to do all university work which can be done efficiently. More than 150 boys and girls last year performed such services as janitor work, cleaning up the campus, stenography and typewriting, and various other forms of manual labor. University dormitories also employ many students as waiters, dish-washers, janitors, etc. Many of the girls obtained employment in Fayetteville doing household work for their board and room.

One instance of much interest was that of the Potter family, of five brothers and sisters, from Arkansas County, who graduated in the same class two years ago. This family kept a set of books during their four years in Fayetteville and spent on an average of $160 per year, all of which they earned themselves. Another young man not only worked his way through college during the four years, but had $50 in the bank when he graduated.

Joseph W. Bell, a St. Louis millionaire, recently celebrated his 90th birthday by retiring from active participation in many big business projects. He gives advice thus to those who would be successful: "Make it a point to deposit something in the bank every week. Start with $1 if nothing more and add to it as you can. Women are the best savers, they put away two-thirds of all the money that is saved. When a husband opens an account in her name he may be pretty sure some of the money will be put away, instead of being spent."

more picturesque and saturnally music was ever written.

"Sadko," based upon the music by Rimsky Korsakoff describes a revel at the bottom of the sea. "The Blue God" is a Hindoo ballet. "Cleopatra" was inspired by Theophile Gautier's vivid little story entitled "One of Cleopatra's Nights." "Narcisso" is a weird setting of the celebrated legend of Narcissus, and "Spectro de la Rose" to Weber's "Invitation to the Waltz." is one of the most effective of all ballets.

Debussy's "Apres-Midi d'un Faune" is in many respects the most remarkable of the Nijinsky ballets, but his work in "Scheherazade" is almost equally marvelous. Other ballets include "Thamar," "Le Sylphides," "Petrouchka," "Princess Enchaanted," and "Prince Igor."

In addition to Nijinsky, the troupe includes Bohm, Lopokova, Flora Rivalles, Gavriloff, Frankmann and other celebrated dancers. Pierre Monteux who conducted the Russian Ballet in its various appearances in Paris and Monte Carlo will conduct.

ENGINEER AND FIREMEN ARE KILLED

Railroad Officials Claim That Train Was Deliberately Wrecked.

(Special to The Herald)
Milwaukee, Oct. 19.—The Milwaukee flyer No. 11, jumped the rail here today and went into a ditch, killing Engineer Fitzgerald and Fireman Pshing. The steel coaches saved the passengers from serious injury. Northwestern railroad officials claim that they have evidence that the train was deliberately wrecked, several similar attempts having been made during the past five years.

PEOPLES' OPINIONS.

Lack Heat at the Central Fire Station

That Portsmouth escaped a serious fire on Tuesday during the high wind was not the fault of those people who were burning leaves about the streets. Not very good judgment. We cannot be too careful while the fire department is crippled waiting the movements of the powers that be. Furthermore the men at the central station are human but it looks like a case of freeze out for the lack of proper heat in the station.

OBSERVER.

TREMONT TEMPLE CONCERT COURSE

The 111th season of the Tremont Temple Concert Course will be by far the greatest in the history of this remarkable popular priced course of high class music. During the six concerts more than twenty singers and instrumentalists of the first rank will appear.

The management has raised the prices slightly—enough to greatly strengthen the artistic side of the concert. The announcement that Marcel Craft of the Munch Opera, Alice Nielson of the Metropolitan, Marie Gay of the Metropolitan and Boston Operas, May Peterson of the Paris Opera—Evelyn Scinty of the Boston Opera head the list of singers is an indication of the high character of the course.

In addition to these stars, Howard White, basso of the Boston Opera, Eduardo Ballstro, Spanish baritone of the Boston Opera, Arturo da la Valle, the French tenor from the Paris Opera, Rodolfo Formari, the baritone of the Boston Opera, are among the vocalists.

The instrumentalists are Vera Barstow, the girl violinist; David Hochstein, the celebrated master of the violin; Heinrich Hebbard, soloist with the Boston Symphony for twenty years in succession; Ralph Smalley, the distinguished American cellist, and Guy Maler and Lee Pattison, who give concerts on two pianos. The prices for the course of six concerts this season are $5.00, $4.00, $3.00 and $2.00.

The first concert comes Thursday evening, Nov. 23, when Marcella Craft, Vera Barstow and Albert Edmund Brown will be the artists. Course tickets go on sale Monday, Oct. 23.

SHEPHERD-MOORE

FORMER PORTSMOUTH GIRL
MARRIED LAST EVENING AT HOME OF HER PARENTS IN STONEHAM, MASS.

Miss Maude Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lovejoy, became the bride of Alvin J. Shepherd, at the home of her parents at Stoneham, Mass., on Wednesday evening. Miss Moore will be remembered here as a graduate of the Portsmouth High School in the class of 1903, and of the Portsmouth Training School, class of 1905. Since leaving Portsmouth she has been teaching school and for the past six years has been principal of the Cliffside School at Saugus, Mass.

Mr. Shepherd is a graduate of Boston University Law School and has served as a member of the school committee for the Town of Saugus and also as the secretary of their Finance Committee.

After an extended wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd will be at home after Dec. 1, at Dexter, Maine.

COLONIAL THEATRE

Homan's Musical Revue at the Colonial Theatre continues to please as greatly as it did the first day it was here. Peculiarly bright and happy in every way, this musical comedy company is making a hit of bits and many a grouch has entered the popular show house to come out a happy laugh.

Tommy Levine contributes in large measure to the joy of life at the Colonial and his witless and character parts are gleam dispensers of the first water.

The dancing section of the Revue is especially strong, and novelty follows novelty in this department. Numerous popular songs of the day are sung as only real artists can sing them and the music lover will find a mine of high class music awaiting him.

Today's play, "A Day at Monte Carlo," is pure fun, platform music and solo and chorus dancing of a high order.

The last two days of the week will see "The Musical Revue of 1916" put on in a superb manner. This, as the title suggests, is a mixture of melodies of the day and clean fun.

The pictures never fail to make a hit and this department is an important one this week.

ALL TO THE GOOD

Gatherings for good are numerous and impressive in New Hampshire. Last week, Nashua had the state Sunday school convention. This week Manchester has the state W. C. T. U. Portsmouth the State King's Daughters, Concord, the state teachers' convention.—Concord Monitor.

MATCH POSTPONED

The team match which was to have taken place at the Country club grounds today has been postponed to Thursday next on account of the weather.

IT'S FOOLISH TO SUFFER

When So Many Portsmouth People Are Pointing the Way Out.

You may be brave enough to stand backache or headache or dizziness. But, if, in addition urination is disordered, look out! If you don't try to fix your sick kidneys, you may fall into the clutches of dangerous disease before you know it. But, if you live more carefully and help your kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills, you can stop the pains you have and avoid future danger as well. Don't experiment—use the remedy Portsmouth people are publicly endorsing. Read this case:

Mrs. P. B. Hodgdon, 79 Thornton St., Portsmouth, says: "Backaches and headaches were quite common with me. A pain in my back often caught me when I bent over, and attempted to straighten up. Often a weak and dizzy feeling came on me. I used Doan's Kidney Pills steadily and they removed this disorder. I haven't had a return attack in some time."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Hodgdon had. Foster-McLure Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

which she applied the lesson of faith in a short talk.

Prayer and a hymn followed. The treasurer's report was read by Miss Saxton, a delegate from New Hampshire, and appropriations for various work were made. A roll call was given to which individuals responded in behalf of their orders. Particularly interesting was that concerning the small circle in Amherst, N. H.

Miss Marion Vose of Concord read a paper on "The Daughter of the King," drawing comparisons from Sarah M. Jewett's book, "The Queen's Twin Sister."

Miss Morehouse, the international general secretary, made an address to the juniors. She is a woman who seems specially fitted to impress young people. She spoke of the significance of service "in His Name" and showed the beauty of a helpful life—a life devoted to doing and giving; urged them to talk happiness and look for it that it may be their gift to others.

Prayer was then offered by Miss Kimball of Concord and a collection was made to cover the expenses of the new banner and the meeting adjourned.

At the North Church chapel the ladies of the Golden Rule Circle of the King's Daughters served as hostesses at a dinner served at 11.30, yesterday having been the day which the ladies of the Inasmuch Circle acted in this capacity.

Mrs. West headed the committee and was assisted by Mrs. Bert French, Mrs. John Wright, Mrs. Roy Dixon, Mrs. A. T. Smith, Mrs. George McPheters, Mrs. William T. Lord, Mrs. Roy Dixon, Mrs. Edward Patterson, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Amos R. Locke, Mrs. Juncan, Mrs. James O. Pettigrew, Mrs. Wilbur Shaw, Mrs. Horace Whalley, Miss Bernice Gage.

The menu was as follows: Roast lamb, mashed potato, brown gravy, green peas, cabbage salad, hot rolls, jelly, all kinds of pie, fruit and coffee. At the close of the morning session both Miss Morehouse, the international general secretary, and Mrs. Farnsworth, the Branch president, were presented with bouquets of red roses from the junior delegates present as an expression of their gratitude for sincere interest and helpful service which these ladies had shown to them.

At the business meeting the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Council member and honorary branch president, Miss Abby G. Plake, Concord; branch president, Mrs. Kate M. Farnsworth, Nashua; recording secretary, Mrs. Jennie C. Woodbury, Nashua; branch treasurer, Mrs. May C. Saxton, Manchester; auditor, Mrs. Mary E. Lund, Concord; Silver Cross representative, Mrs. Frank W. Emerson, Hampstead; executive board, Mrs. A. O. Benfield of Portsmouth, Mrs. Addie B. Neal of Dover, Mrs. Georgeanna W. Flint of Mount Vernon, Mrs. S. T. Ferguson of North Weare, Miss Emma L. Stanley of New London, Miss Margaret A. Spencer of Concord.

The first day's session of the twentieth annual convention of the New Hampshire Branch of the International Order of The King's Daughters now being held at the Middle Street Baptist church in this city, came to a close on Wednesday evening with services and addresses at the church. The devotional service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Thayer, pastor of the North Church, who also delivered the address of greeting to the delegates in the absence of the Rev. William P. Stanley, pastor of the Baptist church. The principal address of the evening was delivered by the Rev. J. M. Gage, pastor of St. Paul's Church of Manchester. In addition to the addresses and the service a musical program was presented which included vocal and organ solos. Miss Clara Morehouse of New York City, international general secretary of the order, delivered an address, in which she told in an interesting way the work being done at the headquarters of the association in New York.

Delegates Served with Supper.—Before the opening of the meeting at 8.00 o'clock a supper was served for the delegates in the North Church Chapel served by the members of Mrs. Edward C. Matthews' Sunday school class, which acted as a committee under the direction of Miss Mary Lane Bickford. The menu included lobster salad, vegetable salad, hot rolls, olives, ice cream, cake and coffee.

The services in the evening opened with an organ prelude by Miss Dimick, taken from the "Stabat Mater" by Rossini. Dr. Thayer led the devotional exercises taking for his subject the lesson of the Good Samaritan from the Gospel of St. Luke. Dr. Thayer said that the story of the Good Samaritan taught two great lessons, first, the meaning of neighbor and second, the meaning of charity. As the order of The King's Daughters is based on these teachings Dr. Thayer urged the members "to work" under these teachings. He said that at the present time there was great need of these lessons being followed and in their connection mentioned the conditions of the peoples in Belgium and Armenia. At the close of his talk on the Gospel Dr. Thayer spoke for a few moments in place of Mr. Stanley who was obliged to be absent. He greeted the delegates to the convention in the name of Mr. Stanley and said that all was ready for the welcoming of them into the Church of Christ. He said "The church needs you and wants you for all that you have done in the Maker's name." He praised the members of the order for their activities in his church and assured them that Mr. Stanley would have sounded a note of thankfulness for their work with him. He spoke of the great opportunities that they had to help members of the church in spiritual fields by following the teachings of their order. Dr. Thayer closed by offering greetings of the Church of Christ, "my own church and the churches from which you come."

Mr. Freeman Caswell sang "Ere I Lay Not Seen" from the Holy City. Miss Morehouse was the next speaker of the evening and she presented a vivid picture of the activities of the staff at the international headquarters in New York City. She described the quarters and furnishings, many of which were gifts and told of the removal from the old quarters on 20th street to the present location on Madison Avenue. Miss Morehouse told of the work at the office which is sufficient to require the services of two assistants. She urged that members of the order make efforts to visit the headquarters when possible and not to slip into the rut as many did, of forgetting their own branch in their work. She said that the New Hampshire branch was one of the first branches of the international order to be organized. Her talk was interesting and to many it gave them a new insight into the work being done.

The Rev. Mr. Gage of Manchester delivered a talk on "How to get the most out of this convention." Mr. Gage is a very earnest, forceful speaker, and his message was followed closely by the large number attending. He said that the greatest good could be gained from the convention by remembering what they had heard after the convention was a thing of the past. He said in part: "You can get the most out of this convention by remembering that which happens. After the convention show the value of the lessons taught by carrying out what you have learned with renewed zeal and renewed energy. Don't forget our object. It is the Power of working in the Name of the Lord; passionate work for others; the getting into the lives of others. Gain heaven, not for ourselves, but for others, and in that way heaven will come to us through God."

Miss Mary Shaw rendered "Just For Today," and the services were concluded by the singing of a hymn and the benediction, given by Dr. Thayer. The program for today's session of the convention will open at 8.30 o'clock in the morning with the casting of the ballots for the New Hampshire Branch officers. The members of the two local branches, the Inasmuch Circle of the North Church and the Golden Rule Circle of the Baptist Church, will act as guides to the visiting delegates on a tour about the city, which will include visits to many of the places of historic interest.

The delegates attending the convention entitled to vote are:

BOSTON LETTER

Boston, Oct. 19.—The loss from typhoid fever and malaria in the U. S. estimated at $23,231,850 each year by U. S. Senator Joseph E. Ransdell of Louisiana brought forth some interesting figures at the State Board of Health. Senator Ransdell made the point that the estimated economic loss which the U. S. suffers each year from typhoid fever and malaria alone aggregates $23,231,850, leaving out of account the sorrow, the unhappiness, the misery and the inefficiency which follow in their train. The total number of typhoid cases reported in this state for August of this year was 265. For the same month last year, the same number was reported. For July, 1916, there were reported 136 cases. On the basis of cases per 100,000 population, it figures at 7.2 per cent for the month of August. For July, the basis is 3.7 per cent.

The board of directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the recommendation of the Society of Automobile Engineers for the uniform location of engine serial or identification numbers. This recommendation is as follows: "The standard location for engine number shall be on the crankcase proper, at the front end, as near the middle as practicable, crosswise, and on top if possible. Consideration should be given to accessibility in the completely assembled car. If it is not possible to locate the number near the center at the front, that position should be approximated, preference being given to the right hand side." The purpose of this recommendation is to help in the recovery of stolen cars by ready identification or by the ability to distinguish them as stolen in cases where the numbers have been tampered with.

The Consumers' League of Massachusetts has brought out in a striking manner the conditions in Boston restaurants. In a recent issue of its "Restaurant Bulletin," the following points are made: General cleanliness of all equipment and utensils, including refrigerators; protection of food in preparation and in serving; clean washing of dishes, either by live steam or by hand washing and wiping; the personal hygiene of the workers. The bulletin says: "The personal hygiene of these handling food products is of vital importance. One of the most striking needs is that of adequate hand washing facilities accessible to the work room. In the great majority of restaurants there is no separate hand sink, the workers depending upon the dish sink, usually filled with dishes; cold water, no soap, and the common roller towel or none at all, are surprisingly general. Exceptional opportunity for hand washing are furnished by one of the Boston restaurants, while in one of the wash rooms of one of the large kitchens of one chain of restaurants there are printed signs in five languages, saying, "Wash your hands before leaving this room."

"I'M THE GOAT" PHRASE AT LAST EXPLAINED

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 19.—The Angora goat has taken its place with the rabbit and guinea pig as an aid to science. In response to a request from the famous Mayo Brothers of Rochester, Minn., a commission firm has shipped two goat skin to the four surgeons. The goats were selected from several thousand because of their age. The specialists in their communication did not state why they wanted animals of great age, merely saying that the oldest ones that could be found were desired for experimental purposes. The physicians offered to pay for the goats, but they were sent without cost.

ETEDRIC CAREER BROUGHT TO HALT

Widow Charged With Altering Money Order to Stand Trial.

Concord, Oct. 19.—United States Marshal Charles J. O'Neill went to Walpole today to bring Richard Wood to Concord for arraignment before U. S. Commissioner Burns P. Hodgman, on a charge of altering a money order.

United States District Attorney Fred H. Brown instructed Marshal O'Neill Wednesday to go after the young man who cut a wide swath in Bellow's Falls and Walpole Tuesday by virtue of a money order calling for $1000, which he showed to various merchants and the proprietor of the Walpole hotel to obtain clothing, jewelry, automobiles and a banquet for as many residents of the two towns as cared to indulge in an old-fashioned turkey spread.

The fact that the postoffice department does not issue money orders for sums exceeding $100 appears never to have occurred to any of the persons who lavished credit upon Wood and only because the hotel proprietor's suspicions were raised because his guest was so slow in cashing the order brought about Wood's arrest late last night. The young man and his bride-to-be visited many stores in Bellow's Falls obtaining goods valued at $600 from the Goodnow department store and jewelry worth $200 from another, it is reported.

Wood was in a state of physical collapse yesterday, so bad that physicians advised the officers not to bring him to this city. An effort was made to settle up the matter by paying the bills contracted by Wood. It was reported here, but District Attorney Brown declined to drop the case and ordered Wood brought here for arraignment.

The young woman he married in the Walpole hotel parlor Tuesday night, stayed in Walpole yesterday to be near her husband and it is understood she will come here with him when Marshal O'Neill brings him today.

It is expected that Wood will arrive in Concord about six o'clock tonight and he will be arraigned immediately before Commissioner Hodgman in the federal court room.

U. S. LEGISLATION TO CONTROL "GAS" OUTPUT IS URGED.

Washington, Oct. 18.—National legislation to be supported by state laws was suggested by the United States bureau of standards today as one of the first steps to standardize the country's gasoline output. A system of inspection, either national or state, was proposed, too, as necessary to safeguard the consumer's interest.

A statement issued by the bureau told of efforts by government experts to arrive at a successful standardization test and warned state legislative bodies to go slowly in setting tests when the proposed laws cannot receive the attention of technical experts. Satisfactory specifications will be hard to find under the best conditions, it is declared.

WHERE DO THE CHORUS GIRLS COME FROM?

Those at The Hippodrome Hall From All Parts of the World—Mostly American. Did you ever wonder where the chorus girls come from? In New York each season thousands of girls find employment in the choruses of musical comedies and from these ranks are recruited the stars of the future. Christie MacDonald played a page to Francis Wilson; Ann Orr began in the chorus, so did Minnie Ashley, Effie Fay and hosts of others who became stage favorites. At the Hippodrome where the largest chorus in the world is assembled, and where Charles Dillingham presents a most picturesque group, a list of girls has been recorded with their respective birthplaces and it is interesting to observe where they come from.

The total number of chorus girls and ballet girls in "The Big Show" is three hundred and two. Of this number 85 were born here in New York and 14 in Brooklyn; four came from Yonkers and four from other cities in New York state. This same number came from California, Connecticut and Kentucky; six represents Illinois and Michigan; two each from Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Louisiana, South Carolina, Texas, Tennessee and Utah; one each from Virginia and Washington, D. C. twelve from Massachusetts and ten from both New Jersey and Pennsylvania, making 181 girls born in America.

The remaining number come from Canada and foreign countries; four from Australia, eight from Canada, sixteen from Germany, twelve from Iceland, fifty-two from England, of which number thirty-two were born in London; six from France, and an average of two each from Italy, Russia, Switzerland, Bavaria, Austria, Japan, Holland, Spain, Sweden and Denmark.

The answer seems to be that they come from all over the world, with America contributing over fifty percent—at least that is the proportion at the Hippodrome.

NEW YORK LETTER

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

NICE IN PUBLIC—Everyone has met the man who is always charming in company, but a sorehead and a grouch in his own family. There is a suggestion of this individual in the fact that while Mr. Wilson publicly proclaims that "the 8-hour day has the sanction of society" he not only permits the postal clerks to be worked for more than eight hours, despite the law against it but that in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, almost opposite Mr. Wilson's own windows in the White House, men and women are being worked 10, 12, and even 14 hours a day. There is a law which prevents a private employer from working women and girls more than 8 hours a day and in Washington it is so rigidly enforced; but when it suits the purpose of Crown Prince McAdoo to work the women and girls as well as the men, in the government's great money factory from 8 a. m. to 8 and 10 and even 2 p. m., it is done without hesitation, probably on the theory that a Crown Prince, like a King, "can do no wrong." Because of the extraordinary value of the product the employees in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing are kept locked up, and as President Wilson and his son-in-law sit on the south porch of the White House, smoking their cigars at a summer evening, they can gaze across the wide lawn and see the brilliantly lighted money factory where the laws designed to protect women from overburdensome labor and men from toiling more than 8 hours are so frequently and so flagrantly violated.

COMING EVENTS—With that keen appreciation of business which has made him so successful, Henry Ford of Detroit has announced his intention of establishing an automobile factory in England in order that he may be able to avail himself of the abundant supply of cheap labor which will follow the end of the war. The London Daily Telegraph has started a movement to prohibit the importation of all American cars after the war. It points out, the effect of this war upon the equipment of motor works, that "The small shop is now the big shop, large works have become factories, and those works which were approaching factory proportions have so grown as to cover acres and acres of ground. Fully equipped with tools and appliances for large production. At present they are occupied with war work, but the time must come sooner or later when these shops will have to depend for orders upon the motor using public. If America could produce a four-seated vehicle fitted with electrical equipment for lighting and for starting for 100 pounds $500, this country should certainly be able to produce an improved article for 150 pounds or so." The Telegraph then goes on to advocate the exclusion by the Allies of all American made cars when the war ends. It declares that with American and German cars excluded, England, France and Italy should be able to capture the trade of Russia, Japan, Roumania and Serbia.

CANADA FOR WILSON—"A United States congress shall not alter the Underwood tariff is the hope of the British manufacturers and especially those with factories in Canada." This is the message which comes from the proceedings of the British Trade Commission at Winnipeg, where the commission is conducting investigations to determine the best means of promoting Imperial and Dominion export trade once the war is over. "If present plans of the trade commission work out," telegraphs the Winnipeg correspondent of the New York Herald, "the tariff wall around Canada will be raised so high that few, if any of the products of the U. S. factories will be able to reach this market, while at the same time it is hoped to see the Underwood tariff continue in existence to the end that the trade balance with the Republic will be substantially in favor of Canada." The Underwood tariff has already done wonders for Canada and writes the correspondent the Canadian belief is that "a Democratic congress in the U. S. will insure a continuation of this ideal condition."

GUM-SHOE BILL RESPONSIBLE—In the light of recent disclosures it is plainly evident that Gum-Shoe Bill Stone of Missouri is the real culprit, that he is the man responsible for the insulting telegram which Woodrow Wilson sent to Jeremiah A. O'Leary, president of the American Truck Society, repudiating Mr. O'Leary's support and conveying a like message to "many disloyal Americans." These are the facts. Partially through the influence of President Wilson, Senator Stone became three years ago, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the senate from the standpoint of foreign affairs. Naturally, Mr. Wilson supposed that by this time Mr. Stone had become something of a diplomat. Accordingly while he was himself thundering against the "hyphenates" and while his campaign managers were berating Mr. Hughes for not saying something insulting to the men who sympathize with Germany, Mr. Wilson dispatched Gum-Shoe Bill to negotiate, in strict secrecy, with a little group of prominent German sympathizers in this city. All the evidence shows that Gum-Shoe Bill pleaded eloquently, promised everything in sight and worked valiantly for his chief. But he was not enough of a diplomat for the task and as Mr. J. M. Kohlmeier, who attended the secret conference, says, "He did not convince us, and when he left he seemed to be a very disappointed man. I don't think Senator Stone's talk changed one vote." This conference took place on the night of September 15. It doubtless took a few days for Mr. Stone to make his report to Shadow Lawn, so that it arrived there just before Mr. O'Leary's first message. Naturally the President was peeved, and, only too naturally, he answered Mr. O'Leary with a frankness and a contempt wholly at variance with his customary political methods. But after all it was Stone who was responsible. He should have persuaded the German sympathizers that they ought gladly to submit to being insulted and vilified by Mr. Wilson in public and vote for him in private, because that was the way to get Mr. Wilson re-elected.

WHO KEPT THEM OUT OF WAR?—Mr. Wilson's contention that he alone has kept this country out of war and that unless he is re-elected the nation will be plunged into war has raised an interesting question as to how, without Mr. Wilson, the little neutral nations of Europe have been kept out of war. There is little Switzerland, surrounded by the belligerents, Holland and Denmark in an almost similar position; Sweden and Norway in close proximity, and Spain adjoining France and with naval engagements taking place right off her shores. Who, or what, kept them out of war? How did they survive and keep the peace without a Woodrow

BREAK A CHILD'S COLD BY GIVING SYRUP OF FIGS

Cleanses the little liver and bowels and they get well quick.

When your child suffers from a cold don't wait, give the little stomach, liver and bowels a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

If your child coughs, snuffles and has caught cold or is feverish or has a sore throat give a good dose of "California Syrup of Figs" to evacuate the bowels no difference what other treatment is given.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups, plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

Wilson? Of course it might be suggested that they have been kept out of war by the fact that the belligerents had their hands full and not one of them wanted to increase the numbers of its enemies, but that argument would apply equally to the U. S. and would support the contention of Senator Root that never in the history of the U. S. has it been easier to keep out of war than during the European conflict, and that it is a wicked argument because it robs Mr. Wilson of his only claim to reelection.

PAIS—Crown Prince McAdoo has gone west to study for his papa-in-law, and at Shadow Lawn President Wilson tells a meeting of the uninformed that John Skelton Williams, Comptroller of the Currency, is an "honorable and efficient official" while poor old Amantius and Baron Munchhausen do another flap in their respective graves.

STATE NEWS

Exeter Student in Court

Mayfield, Oct. 19.—W. March Boul of Norfolk, Va., a student at Phillips Exeter Academy, who had been summoned by mail to appear in the district court, pleaded not guilty yesterday to a charge of violating the local traffic rules in not stopping his auto last Saturday afternoon when warned by Traffic Officer William Murphy at the corner of Merrimack and Bridge streets.

Boul claimed that he did not see the officer give any warning. Judge John A. Winn said the policeman had acted properly in making the complaint, but as Boul had a good record he decided to give him the benefit of the doubt and ordered the complaint dismissed rather than have Boul have a court record.

Birchall-McDermott

Nashua, Oct. 19.—Miss Irene McDermott, who was graduated from St. Joseph's hospital Training School this year and Hugh F. Birchall of Temple street, an insurance agent, were married yesterday morning at St. Patrick's church by Rev. Matthew Creamer. Miss Katherine Quallers was bridesmaid and Benedict R. Birchall, best man. A wedding breakfast was served at the future home of the couple, 11 Harvard street, after which they started on a trip to the Provinces.

Disposes of $50,000

Manchester, Oct. 19.—The will of Mrs. Emma P. Cheney, widow of Geo. W. Cheney, who was for a long time superintendent of streets of Manchester, was made public yesterday. The estate is valued at more than $50,000.

To Alice M. Jones of Berwick, Me., she left $5000; to Edna U. Sargent of Manchester, $500 and a diamond ring; to Marion S. Prescott of Manchester, $500 and a diamond ring; to her sisters, Sarah A. Purpus, Susan E. Heard, Christie Horne and Eleanor Horne, all of Dover, $1,000 each; to her niece, Emma B. Tuttle of Concord, $2000. The residue of the estate is to be equally divided among her four sisters.

Rally at Rochester

Rochester, Oct. 19.—The Stratford Republican club held a rally in the City Opera House last evening. The speakers were Harry W. Keyes of Woodville, candidate for governor; Hon. Cyrus A. Holloway, candidate for reelection to congress; John H. Bartlett of Portsmouth, and George H. Moses, ex-Minister to Greece. The rally was preceded by a torchlight procession. Hundreds of persons lined the route of the parade and there was a lavish display of fire with roman candles. J. Levi Menden, chairman of the Republican city committee, presided at the rally. The speakers generally discussed national affairs but Mr.

JOHN S. RAND RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT

Annual Meeting of Trustees of Portsmouth Hospital Held on Wednesday.

The annual meeting of the trustees of the Portsmouth hospital was held on Wednesday, Oct. 18, at the residence of Hon. Wombury Langdon on Pleasant street.

The customary reports were received and will be published in full in the annual report for the public. The statistics for the year show 526 patients admitted as against 463 last year, with $366 hospital days, an increase of 1751 over last year's number.

There were 618 full pay days, 643 part pay days and 1695 days' treatment free to patients. In the maternity department there has been 68 births.

The X-ray apparatus and operating room, provided by the legacy of the late Dr. Robert O. Trendwells, has been the greatest need for many years and its value to the public and to the work of the hospital has already been proved.

We are glad to learn that the income from all sources has been sufficient to meet expenses.

The following named officers were re-elected for the coming year: John S. Rand, president; John C. Batchelder, secretary; Lewis E. Staples, treasurer.

THE HERALD HEARS

Twenty-Five Tables in Play at Party Given by Constitution Circle, C. of F.

The members of Constitution Circle, No. 294, Companions of the Forest, gave a highly anticipated whist party at Labor hall, Freeman's Block, on Wednesday evening, twenty-five tables being in play. At the conclusion of play refreshments were served. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. Nellie Philbrick, Misses Katherine and Mary Conway, Mrs. Jennie Leary, Mrs. Margaret Shields.

Robert L. Ellery, formerly of this city and now of Toledo, Ohio, is moving into his new factory, 130 feet long, 60 feet wide and five stories high. The building is of concrete and iron and is owned entirely by Mr. Ellery. He has been in Toledo four years and is engaged in the same business that he tried to interest local people in here. His son is making a fine success and has just had completed a new residence in that city.

NEW ASSISTANT BREWMASER

Will Succeed Late Karl Fink at the Portsmouth Brewing Company.

Alols Stumpf, for several years connected with the Star Brewing Co., at Frankford, Pa., has been appointed assistant brewmaster at the Portsmouth Brewing Company to succeed the late Karl Fink. The new assistant is a man of much experience and will make a valuable man for the local firm.

VETERANS CELEBRATE

Franklin Pierce Association Opens the Social Season on Wednesday Night.

The Franklin Pierce Veterans Firemen's Association gathered in large numbers at the headquarters on Maplewood avenue on Wednesday evening when the winter social season was opened. The association had several special guests on the occasion and during the period at the festive board addresses were made by Col. John Pender and former Chief of Police Thomas Entwistle. A very pleasing program of vocal and instrumental music was a feature of the evening.

WORK COMMENCED ON ADDITION TO CLUB HOUSE

Ground was broken this morning for the addition to the new home of the Woman's Club on Middle street. A hall large enough for public meetings will be erected and made ready for occupancy at an early date as possible.

WILL WORK AT SAGO

Mrs. Ella Hammond, Miss Lillian Plimpton, Miss Alice Haughey, Miss Anna O'Brien and Miss Mary Howe, have left for Saco, Me., where they will take positions with a shoe manufacturing firm.

RUMOR OF RESIGNATION

A rumor is in circulation that Mrs. Alice B. Montgomery, general secretary of the New Hampshire Aid and Children's Protective Association, has resigned.

PERSHING'S MEN TO BE WITHDRAWN IS MEXICAN REPORT

SALTILLO PAPER PUBLISHES DIS-PATCH PURPORTING TO COME FROM THE CONFEREES

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 18.—Under the heading, "The Forces of the Punitive Expedition Will Leave Mexican Territory," La Reforma of Saltillo, Coahuila, publishes a telegram from the private secretary of Gen. Espinosa Mireles, dated at Piedras Negras, Coahuila, Oct. 17. The telegram says:

"I have the honor of informing you that the international conference at Atlantic City has been completely successful and the withdrawal of the Pershing punitive expedition from our territory agreed upon."

The message is signed "L. Sanchez." Below it is printed a message from Mexico City dated Oct. 12, which after mentioning the border patrol scheme as under discussion, adds:

"It is said, nevertheless, that in the afternoon session it was agreed that the troops of the punitive expedition would leave the Mexican republic. The conference will proceed on this basis until all the existing difficulties are solved."

20,000 IN ONE SCHOOL FOR MACHINE GUNNERS

London, Oct. 17.—Now 20,000 British soldiers are learning to operate the machine gun in a single school is told today by a writer signing himself "E. T. C." in a London newspaper. He says:

"Once upon a time"—which today means anything before August, 1914—the machine-gun in England was merely a regimental side-show, something dimly associated with the battalion mule, something that required an amount of cleaning out of all proportion to the amount of ammunition allowed to it.

In that "once upon a time" the machine gun school was a small department of a not very pretentious musketry camp. It was attended by a select few, who found they had a fortnight's superfluous energy after learning the elements of the rifle.

The other day I was privileged to see the machine gun training centre as it exists today. It took me an hour to walk from end to end of it.

As it happened, my train brought a batch of recruits, a hundred men from a Scottish Infantry Depot, specially picked men you could see at a glance, marching with a swing, that showed they were novices only in the limited machine-gun sense.

I followed in their dust through the town of X, but beyond to what had once been a mighty park with pleasant pastures and shaded paths. Paths there were still in plenty, but precious little astute and devil of shade. I passed the sentry, presented my credentials, and found myself with the freedom of a new city, a city, I afterwards learned, with some thousands of inhabitants, yet ever growing. I will call this wooden city Gunville.

The reception bureau claims first attention. My hundred recruits are there undergoing a preliminary inspection, for though they are "selected birds" they have been selected by the officer who is losing them, and it is just possible that his views will not entirely coincide with the views of the C. O. (command officer), Gunville.

This proves to be the case, and fifteen sorrowful men go back by the next suitable train to acquire further merit. For Gunville wants the best, men of quick intelligence as well as broad shoulders, and they must be delivered as per specifications.

In six weeks or so each one of that floating population of 20,000 must become a specialist and go onwards to deal death at so many hundred rounds a minute, or go backwards to the place whence he came.

Surprisingly few go back. One's friends are apt to be unkind about it. It is impossible in a brief impression to give more than an idea of the extreme thoroughness of Gunville. Many a neutral, however friendly, comes to England with a notion that everything in the way of war organization will be elaborate and patchy. If he gets his inspiration from the man in the street and neglects to probe deeper he will probably go away with the idea unaltered.

But given the chance to see the inner workings as I have done, he will find he is very much mistaken. There have been mistakes, of course, but every mistake has been a lesson. The truth is that the genius of Kitchener and Lloyd George has called up an organization which is unsurpassed and unconquerable. Gunville is only a case in point, just one of a hundred parts in a great machine which works more smoothly every day.

Granted that the raw material is good, it is converted into the finished article with incredible swiftness. I watched the evolution of the machine-gunner from start to finish as he passed from group to group; saw his mechanical interest aroused and directed; saw his eye trained; witnessed his delight when the machine at last became his servant and spluttered out its pellets to the proper detriment of its target. I followed him also in his off hours, and acquired in the process some insight into the mystery of Britain's success. To the uninitiated it once seemed incredible that a nation whose ideals were all bound up in peace could stand up successfully to a nation bred to the idea of war.

I lunched at the headquarters mess. Officers from thirty or forty different regiments dropped in, with a sprinkling of more seasoned material wearing the armband of the instructor. A bare half hour or so for lunch and a cigarette and they were off again to their classes or their squads. The talk—till it was not in Gath—was largely "shop." Every man there was "diligent in his business" and was not ashamed to show it.

The service at that mess, like everything else at Gunville, showed the perfection of organization. The arrangements were in the hands of the Women's Legion. A service by women in a military mess is a revolution indeed, but there have been many revolutions of this sort in England.

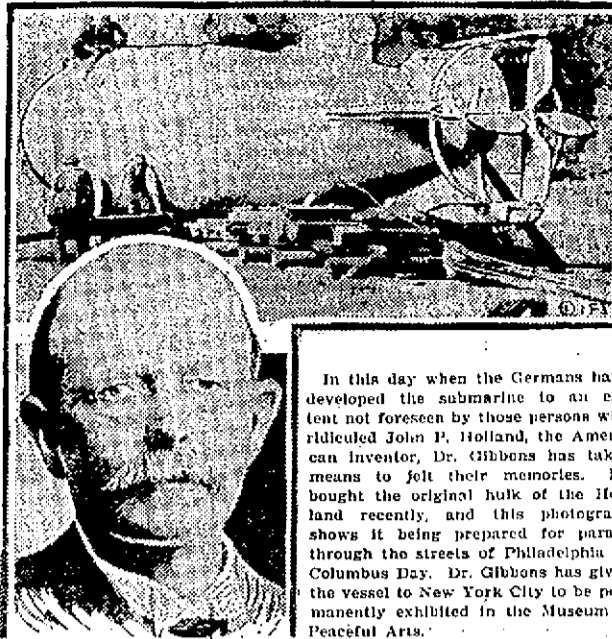

JUDGE MAKES THRIFTY BOY HIS ASSISTANT

ISIDOR SCHLETTER

Look upon Associate Judge Isidor Schletter, sixteen years of age. To him has been given the work in Passaic, N. J., of helping to reform boys who have not yet learned the value of a cent and the worth of order. Judge Thomas P. Costello was so interested in Isidor, who appeared in connection with a recent case, he made Isidor find the youngster had through the sale of newspapers saved $500. "I shall let him tell other boys brought into this court how to save," said the judge. So Schletter now talks with all boys taken to court telling them how he saved his $500, and how they can do likewise. The judge has found him a valuable assistant.

HEARD AT THE NATIONAL CAPITOL

(Special Correspondence)

THE EIGHT-HOUR DAY

To hear President Wilson talk about the eight-hour day one would think the phrase a linguistic twin of that blessed word Mesopotamia. If there is virtue in the phrase, however, it is the Republican party that can claim the credit.

The first eight-hour-a-day law was enacted by Congress June 25, 1868, when that body was overwhelmingly Republican. It provided that "eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all laborers, workmen and mechanics who may be employed by or on behalf of the government of the United States."

This law has continued in effect to this day. It was amended and extended in the early Nineties, when Thomas B. Reed was in his first term as Speaker and again in 1912, when a Republican President still occupied the White House.

Among the states, Republican Illinois, in 1903, was the first to establish the eight-hour day for children; and of the twenty-three states which have legislative restrictions regarding the hours of employment for any class of labor, fifteen are Republican and only eight are Democratic.

The Democratic party never adopted an eight-hour law in federal legislation—for the Adamson bill is not an eight-hour law at all—and whenever a Democratic State legislature has ever given sanction to such enactments, it has been because an active Republican minority took the initiative and forced the issue.

The Federal Treasury At the end of the first quarter of this fiscal year the federal treasury showed a deficit of $40,897,000, as against a deficit of $32,051,000 a year ago. And this in spite of the fact that receipts for the quarter were nearly $28,000,000 greater than for the first quarter of last year.

The increase of nearly twenty millions in the deficit is doubtless to be explained in some measure by the cost of the Mexican mobilization, which will be cared for, after a while, by a bond issue—such a provision having been incorporated in the last revenue bill. These bonds will not be put out until after election, inasmuch as the administration has no desire to call an emphasized attention to this standard feature of Democratic management of the national finances.

Slowly and reluctantly the Wilson administration is giving up the facts regarding the influence of the European war in reviving American industry. The last session of Congress required the Department of Commerce to collect and publish statistics of the use of cotton in making explosives, and the report has recently been made public. In the calendar year 1915 American manufacturers of munitions used 244,003 bales of an average net weight of 500 pounds, and in the first half of 1916 their use of cotton for the same purpose amounted to 297,713 bales, or more than for the entire twelve months of 1915. These figures do not include cotton exported for use of foreign manufacturers of explosives. No wonder the price of cotton has been advancing. That commodity, like almost everything else, nowadays, is an adjunct of modern warfare.

Mr. Wilson foresees that if Hughes is elected the "speculators," as he terms them, will have in Mexico "the kind of law and order they want." The language is delicate, as we have learned to expect from Mr. Wilson—but maybe he will be good enough to tell the country some day what "kind of law and order" he wants in Mexico.

BRITISH AGAIN WORRY OVER RECRUITING DEMAND

London, October. Quite a stir is going on among the anti-militarists on account of the severe measures the military authorities are adopting to raise at least another million men in Great Britain.

Many of these declare that the government has gone back on its pledge to safeguard "conscientious objectors" and that the military are "prussifying" the British army, regardless of the fact that it was to kill this very system that they embarked upon the present devastating war.

The penalties which are being imposed upon so-called shirkers and the police raids being made upon railway depots and places of entertainment are held up to public opinion as an example of how the government has yielded to the demands of the war office.

Today this question of extending the age limit to 45 is being discussed and indications are that it will soon become an accomplished fact. France is being held up as an example with her age limit at 45. Sir William Robtson, chief of the Imperial staff, confirmed the public suspicion in a speech in which he said:

"We will have to fight in peace as well as war."

The anti-militarists say there is a lot of young blood in the country still available which has not yet been tapped, and in their opinion, a still stronger argument is "that there is a growing demand for the conscription of colored troops from South Africa and elsewhere."

R. P. Huston, a well known shipping merchant and member of Parliament for a division of Liverpool: "As early as May, 1915, I called the attention of the government to material in South Africa and subsequently offered at my own expense to raise, to equip and train, a regiment composed of Basutos, Zulus, or others of the fighting races of South Africa. My offer, of course, was rejected, although I pointed out that France was using to her utmost ability the colored soldiers of her colonies."

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE NOTES

New Hampshire College, Oct. 18.—"There is no institution in New Hampshire" said H. C. Morrison, state superintendent of education in an address to the students at convocation here this afternoon "That means as much to this state as does this one." Mr. Morrison explained that he said this because this college gathers its students from New Hampshire and great numbers or perhaps a most of them return again to New Hampshire homes and give the state the benefit of their training.

"You are here, most of you," he continued, "to learn to earn your livings. You must, to be good citizens, be able to do your part in the world's work and do it efficiently. But let me caution you against laying too much emphasis on your professional courses. Do not forget that there is such a thing as an educated engineer, who is not an educated man. There is such a thing as an educated farmer who is not an educated man. The state needs intelligent citizens. There is often among otherwise educated people a bad ignorance of civic matters. It must be said for the political boss that his success is due to the fact that he does really know more about the structure of the state than does the average man who considers himself educated. I would have you not ignore courses in history and economics and political science."

"But even when you are a good citizen and an efficient citizen, and an intelligent citizen, you still have the problem of how to live before you. You must needs be broad. That means knowing many things. You must know literature and music, etc. in general. I wish indeed more attention were paid to music in all of our schools. Perhaps the most happiness comes to man from the love of reading. Then, too, one should study philosophy which is akin to religion."

Lastly let me caution you not to ignore out-of-door exercises. They are tremendously valuable. One of the greatest instrumentalities toward fair living, toward tolerance and catholicity of view comes from sane out-of-door exercises, play and sports."

Mr. Morrison as he looked over the well-filled gymnasium where he spoke said that he was pleased to see his prophecy of two years ago as to the growth of the college so rapidly being fulfilled, and in his discussion of professional courses said he hoped to see courses in business offered here. Only 1 or 2 schools in New England satisfactory in this respect.

DENIES LUSITANIA OFFER ACCEPTED

Asbury Park, N. J., Oct. 18.—Following a conference with President Wilson and a telephone conversation with Acting Secretary of State Polk, Presidential Secretary Joseph Tumulty today characterized as "absolute fabrications" published reports that the United States had accepted a settlement of the Lusitania case, based on the German contention that the attack was justified.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The last German memorandum to this government, proposing certain terms for the settlement of the Lusitania sinking has not been accepted by the United States, Acting Secretary of State Polk formally announced today.

Polk made this announcement because of published reports that the memorandum had been accepted and would be used as a basis for a final settlement.

"The note has not been accepted," said Polk, "and it will not be made public. Stories that it has been accepted and would be published were printed for partisan purposes. The state department is not going to be drawn into discussion at this time."

The published story referred to declared the United States had waived its demands for a disavowal of the Lusitania torpedoing.

The article continued that an agreement had been reached with Germany "wherein the United States would recognize that the Lusitania sinking was justified, though the loss of American lives was not justified. Germany, the article asserted, would express regret for the loss of American lives and promise financial reparations."

TRAPSHOOTING IN U. S. NAVY

Sport Has Taken Such a Hold That Clubs Have Been Formed on Ten of Uncle Sam's Fighting Ships.

(By Peter P. Carney)

It doesn't seem so long ago that we were startled from our normal train of thought on reading that some trapshooting fans aboard one of Uncle Sam's ships had taken to trapshooting to help pass the time away. Much was said about it at the time, but the general opinion seemed to exist that it was a passing fancy and wouldn't amount to much.

Time, however, has exploded the fallacy of this reasoning, and each day we see fresh evidence of the growing popularity of the sport among the officers and men on our battleships. To Paymaster P. P. Williams must be accorded the palm for being the most enthusiastic "gun bug" of them all. At one time he was located at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Las Alamos, Colorado, where he was introduced to and formed a great liking for the sport of trapshooting. He soon became known as one of the most prominent clay target men of that section.

Then he was transferred to the U. S. Hospital Ship Solace, but never for an instant did his allegiance to trapshooting falter, and the limelight has continued to shine upon him, for it is seldom that a month passes that he does not originate some new idea, or engage in some new trapshooting activity. Nor does he court the limelight, for he is a modest and retiring individual withal.

After getting several of his brother officers on other ships interested in trapshooting, he helped them organize gun clubs on board their boats, and it is now recorded that in addition to the one aboard the Solace, clubs have been formed aboard the U. S. S. Arkansas, New York, Florida, South Carolina, Texas, Wyoming, Oklahoma, Cheyenne and Glacier.

Not to be outdone by the "land-lubbers" with their registered tournaments and other large shoots, it came to Paymaster Williams that the navy shooters should have a registered tournament of their own. Application for same was made to the Interstate Association at Pittsburgh, Pa., the Interstate Association being the governing body of trapshooting. The registration was granted, and the shoot held at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, in March, when many of the vessels of the Atlantic fleet were at the proving grounds. The tournament was an unqualified success, Paymaster Williams became the "Champion of the Navy" at this shoot.

At the suggestion of the paymaster and others, E. L. duPont de Nemours & Company presented the trapshooters of the navy with a sterling silver loving cup trophy, to be contested for in a series of team shoots. The cup stands fifteen inches high, and while of a conventional design, its quality and massiveness are impressive. The team from the U. S. S. Solace, composed of Paymaster Williams, Surgeon Woods and Surgeon Strine, recorded the first win on the duPont trophy, registering scores of 53, 73 and 62, respectively.

Ask any trapshooter in the navy what he thinks of trapshooting on board boats, and he will tell you it's the thing. So we can expect that the sport will eventually become general, and that every one of Uncle Sam's battleships will have their trapshooting club. There are few sports that present the opportunities for enjoyment equal to those of trapshooting, which can be indulged in anywhere and any time, on land or sea, whenever the spirit moves the enthusiast.

UNCLE SAM EXPLAINS

(By W. J. Lampton in The New York Herald.)

I want't understand by all that I am Uncle Sam—not 'Uncle Sham,' as I've been called and I don't give a damn for non-essentials in this war which don't apply to me; but what I stand for, first and last, is world democracy! When Belgium, small and weak, was struck by one ten times her size and by no other right than force became the bully's prize, I fell down on my principles, in trying to restrain myself from inflicting, and failed to make my standing plain, I should have said, as now I say, that all men must be free to think as individuals and know democracy. I should have said, as I now say, the rights of man must be the only

John Barrett, director general of the Pan American Union, was one of the passengers of the French steamship Lafayette, which dodged the U-53. Officers of the vessel knew the German submarine was operating before they left France, but they did not delay the voyage. When they reached the vicinity of Nantucket Lightship they veered south and the vessel reached New York without seeing the deadly German engine of war. Had the Lafayette been attacked the lives of many well-known Americans, W. K. Vanderbilt, S. S. McClure and others, and of Caruso, the singer, and Gatti Casazza, manager of the Metropolitan opera house, would have been in peril.

CREAM FOR CATARRH OPENS UP NOSTRILS

Tells How To Get Quick Relief from Head-Colds. It's Splendid!

In one minute your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffing, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh will be gone.

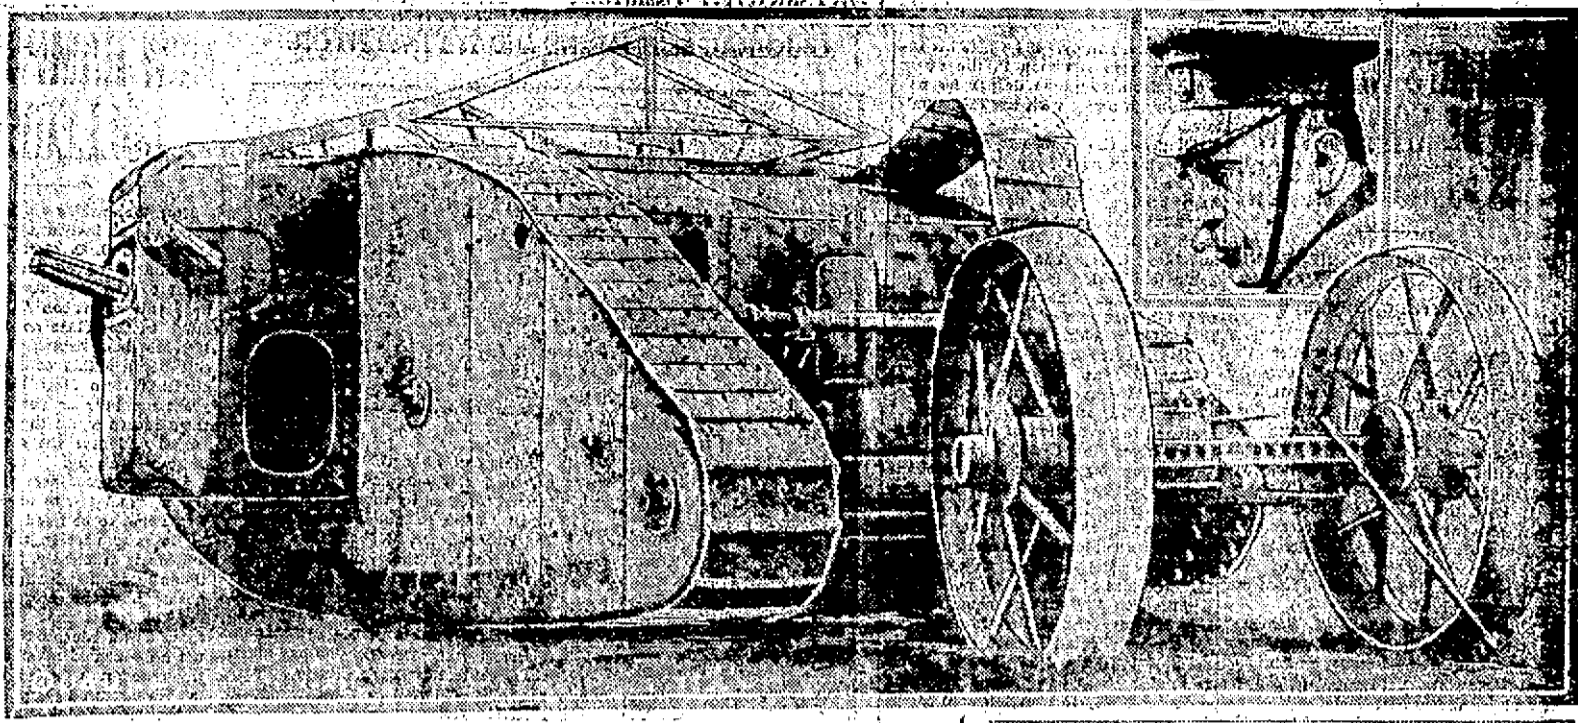

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed up with a cold or nasty catarrh—bottle!

The bowling season is getting away. The Elks' Alleys will be opened within a week and the Elks' League will likely be knocking 'em down by the first of the month.

The Style Book is not a great big book—only 12 pages. But it will give you a better idea of the real style in outer garments for Fall and Winter than some of the 100-page books which you may have seen.

Because this little book was started less than a month ago—while the big mail order catalogs take months to produce and the styles shown in them are old before the catalogs are ready.

FILENE stocks change very rapidly. Specializing as we do, with many more buyers and departments than the usual store, new things which we want you to know about are constantly pouring in.

So we get out this small book and change it frequently. If you ask for it once, the new editions will be sent to you as they come out. And you get fresh new styles instead of old ones.

Real!

IF you ask at our store for a warning signal for your car—you'll get a KLAXON—a real KLAXON—one with the Lovell-McConnell name-plate. We won't try to palm off on you a cheap imitation by CALLING it a Klaxon.

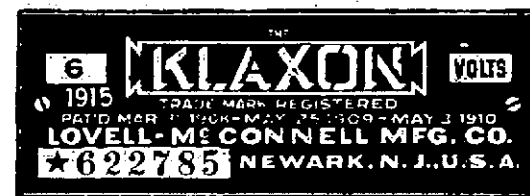

We believe in selling you the signal that we KNOW—after many years' experience—is the BEST signal.

We know it will make you a FRIEND of ours. You'll be SATISFIED. You'll come back here for other things.

Klaxons cost a little more than unknown, untried imitations, but when you compare the stuff that is

IN them, the sound that comes OUT—when you compare their WARNING POWER, their CARRYING POWER, their PERMANENT guarantee, understand why more than three-quarters of a MILLION motorists have chosen them.

Klaxons are the REAL THING in warning signals. And all real Klaxons have this name-plate:—

—“the sign of a perfect signal”

SALIDORS DEFEAT HIGH SCHOOL TEAM IN RETURN GAME

WASHINGTON SECOND ELEVEN EVENS UP SERIES YESTERDAY WITH A 9 TO 6 FOOT BALL VICTORY.

Portsmouth High was defeated Wednesday afternoon in their return football game with the U. S. S. Washington second eleven, 9 to 6. Haven's goal from the field breaking the 6 to 6 tie which threatened to hold until the end of the game. Miller's 60-yard run through a broken field for the touch-down scored for the salidors was another feature of the game. Bartruf and Joyce also played well for the winners.

For Portsmouth Mulholland played a sensational game, making repeated runs of fifteen and twenty yards for gains through the line. Bailey, Thompson and Smith also played well for the high school. The summary: U. S. S. Washington Portsmouth Miller, lb. re, Rabston Moore, lb. rt, Smith Joyce, lg. rt, Badger Glovick, c. Call Faulkner, rg. lg. Campbell Taylor, rt. rt. Smart Crowe, re. lb. WITH THE SPORTS

Very often the success of a ball player depends upon the way he is handled by bosses. Under the subordination of one type of leader he will be a success; under another of different mold he may be a flat failure. The case of Rube Marquard, the temperamental left hander is an excellent illustration.

During the early part of his career with the Giants Marquard showed nothing. It looked for a time as if the club had been stung in paying $11,000 for him. And when Wilbert Robinson, "the greatest salver" in baseball, took into himself the job as coach of the Giant pitchers, Marquard passed from the domination of McGraw to that of Robinson.

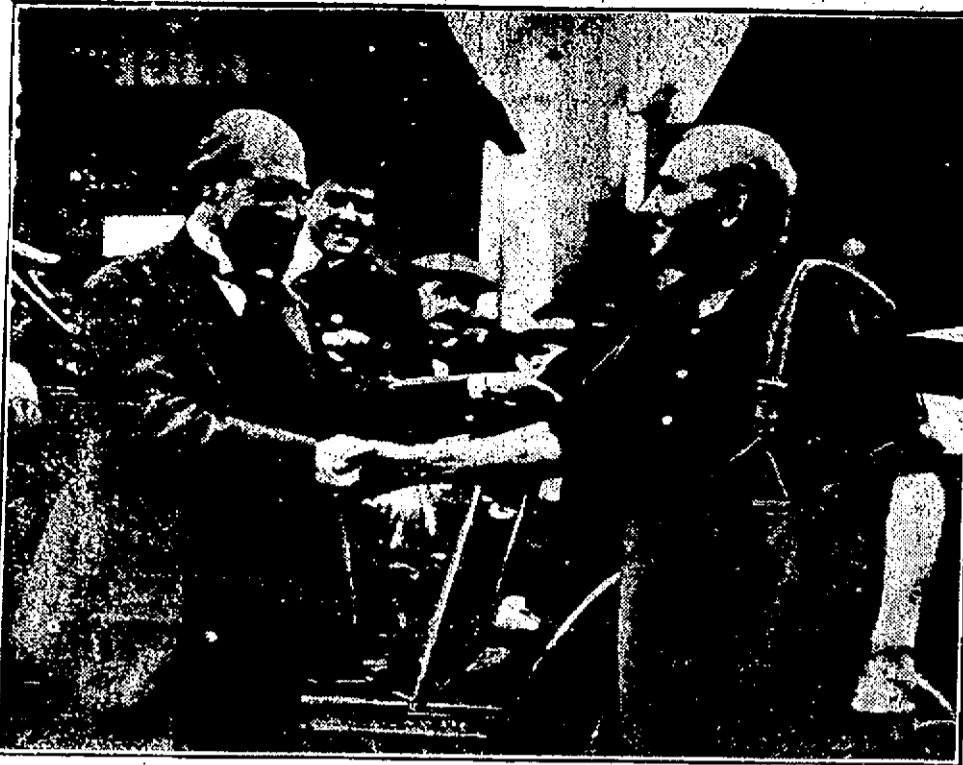

And Marquard, almost miraculously developed into a star. McGraw's way of handling him hadn't helped. He needed someone like Robinson to stiffen his backbone with praise; someone to tell him—and keep telling him that he was the greatest pitcher in the league. His temperamental required Robinson's "salve" treatment, not McGraw's bulldozing.

In 1911, 1912, 1913, Marquard, with Robinson handling him, became the pitching sensation of the league. Over that sweep of three years he won 73 games out of 100 for a grand average of over 700. He looked good for at least three years more as a shining star in the big leagues.

And then Robinson quit the Giants to manage the Dodgers—and Marquard began to jolly. He no longer had Robinson to jolly him along; he was back again under the fiery McGraw. The southpaw began to slip and slip and still further slip.

In 1914, the first year that Robinson was away, Marquard lost 27 of 31 starts. He pitched without the steadiness and the brilliancy of the other years; he seemed like an athlete whose spirit had been broken. In 1915 his performance with the Giants showed no improvement. And so McGraw in disgust asked for waivers on him, with the result that Robinson, and Robinson alone, put in a claim for him.

"I Am Very Pleased to Meet You"

Christopher Hoeft, machinist, and for 47 years in the employ of the Westinghouse Company, shaking hands with Republican Presidential Nominee Charles Evans Hughes at the Albrake plant, Wilmerding. The veteran employee conducted Mr. Hughes on a trip through the works and later introduced him to the assembled workmen.

"Italy, you're getting a lemon if you take him advised McGraw. 'Mebbe so—and mebbe not' answered the Dodger leader. 'I think Rube has a lot of good baseball in him yet—and that I can get it out of him.'"

And so Rube Marquard passed on again to the "bossing" of the man who had made him famous. "Now, looks here Rube," said Wilbert when Marquard reported, "I'm banking on you to show the folks that I know a pitcher when I see one. No one else but your Uncle Wilbert says you are fit to be a major leaguer. Go out and show them that you are—go and show them that I wasn't a boob when I took you. Get out there and beat the other guys to a pulp. You can do it—sure you can."

And Rube has been doing it right along. That same left hander who was tagged "all through" last year was one of the real powers in the Dodgers drive for the pennant. He never pitched better baseball than he has this year. He has come back and with a rush. All year long, this man labelled a has-been by McGraw has pitched with wonderful steadiness and consistency.

Edward "Jeff" Pfeffer had a hard time breaking into the majors. It was not because no one thought him a good pitcher, but because the magnates who heard of the doings of a Pfeffer in the minors confused him with the ancient Pfeffer of some years ago.

Back in the latter part of 1913 Jim Claffey, then owner of the Braves, got a letter from a friend in Grand Rapids.

"Grab this fellow Pfeffer who is pitching for the Grand Rapids club," advised a friend. "He's a wonder; been pitching real baseball and ought to be a sensation in the big leagues."

Thereupon Claffey laughed. "Why should I sign him up?" he remarked to one of his associates. "He's a has-been."

You see, Jim had him mixed up with the old hurler by the same name.

A while later it became noised around that a chap named Pfeffer was doing great things in the Central league. But all the magnates but Pfeffer figured it was the old Pfeffer, the veteran. So they passed up the chance to snare one of the best ball tossers that has busted into the big tent in years.

C. Hercules however, had a scout somewhere in the Grand Rapids territory. C. Hercules wasn't sure whether Pfeffer was the old boy or a youngster. But he didn't take any chances. He wired his scout to take a look at the bird, which the scout did. Pfeffer was drafted by Ephs because it wasn't the old Pfeffer but a young one who was setting the league on fire.

Pfeffer won 23 out of 35 games for the Dodgers in 1914 and this year he was there most dependable pitcher, the boy who put them in the light early in the year and who, having one slip-up helped to keep them there.

One of the biggest baseball buyings on record was Zach Wheat, Ephs bought him from Mobile in 1909 for $1200 and at that time figured that maybe these Southerners are slipping something over. But Ephs got a surprise and an agreeable one.

Wheat has been a major leaguer for eight seasons and finished with a batting average beyond 300 on five separate and distinct occasions. Oddly enough, he never hit 300 in the minors, yet in his first year in the big league he clubbed them for 304. In 1912 he hit for 305, in 1913 it was 301, in 1914 for 312. He slumped to 288 last year, but came right back this season with something like 320.

Another brace of lucky guys are Dick Hoblitzel, first baser for the Sox and Larry Cheney, the spittin performer for the Dodgers. They were considered all in by their former club owners. No one wanted to buy them. So waivers were asked.

The Sox needed a first baseman just about the time the Reds wanted to get rid of Hoblitzel and they took him for $1500. The next season, 1915 Hoblitzel busted into the world series and took unto himself a large portion of the world series spoils. And now he is in for another big share.

Cheney failed miserably during his last year or two with the Cubs in Chicago. It looked like the minors for him but at the last minute, Ephs picked him up for $1500. And now Larry is going to have the pleasure of spending—or saving a nice sum of money for his share of the world series spoils.

ARRESTED AS FIRST AMERICAN SNIPER

Stanley Mydosh, son of the owner of the hall in Bayonne, N. J., where the Standard Oil strikers, who have come into conflict with the police there with a loss of several lives and the wounding of many men, and women, is charged by the police of that Jersey town as being the first American sniper. They took him in hand saying he had used a pair of glasses from the roof of the hall to pick out policemen at long distance and shoot them with a rifle.

PAPER MILLS TO USE NEW WOODS.

Washington, Oct. 18.—As the result of studies which have been made at the Forest Products Laboratory on methods of handling wood chips suitable for paper pulp, it is announced that Wisconsin paper companies are now negotiating with the railroads for shipment to their factories of experimental train loads of chips of western woods adapted to paper making.

Previous investigations by the Forest Service have demonstrated that good grades of paper can be made from a number of western woods. The experts now estimate that some of these woods, when cut into chips and dried and baled, can be delivered to the mills in Wisconsin at a very small advance over the cost of chips made from local timber. If a favorable freight rate can be obtained, they say, the great quantity of pulpwood on the National Forests should prove to be a considerable factor in supplying favorably located paper mills. With the necessary raw material in Wisconsin alone, it is stated, there is an annual market for over 300,000 cords of pulpwood.

AT THE PRINCIPAL BOSTON THEATRES

"THE SILENT WITNESS"

"The Silent Witness," the most discussed and popular drama of the present theatrical season, ends its limited engagement at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, next week. The run of this powerful drama of mother love was interrupted in New York and now the play is to be taken back there when it finishes its engagement in Boston.

Mary Young, Boston's favorite actress, will continue to play the leading female role in this drama until it ends its Boston run. Miss Young has played many parts in innumerable plays during her career, but she never had as good an opportunity to display her artistry as she has in "The Silent Witness." As Helen Hastings, the mother, she does some excellent acting, particularly in the emotional scenes, where she pleads for the life of her boy with the father whom she supposed was dead.

Miss Young has not any hesitancy in saying that the role of the mother in this play is the biggest part she has ever played. No actress, no matter how great her ability, could wish for a better one, she declares. It is a far greater part than that of Ellen Neal, which Miss Young created in "Common Clay" and for that matter this actress don't hesitate to declare that "The Silent Witness" is a far greater play.

H. H. Frazee, who produces "The Silent Witness" has assembled a remarkably strong cast to interpret the many roles in this interesting play. The chief player is Henry Kolker, an excellent actor. He plays the role of the District Attorney, who turns out to be the father of the boy whom he is called upon to prosecute for murder. The boy is played sympathetically by Lorin Baker.

De Writ Jennings, Paul Everton, Maud Gilbert, David Higgins and Miriam Doyle are some of the other players who are called upon to bear the heaviest work in this play. No better cast has appeared in a drama in many days. The regular matinee days at the Plymouth are on Thursday and Saturday.

"HER SOLDIER BOY"

Clifton Crawford, John Charles Thomas and Margaret Romaine in a Remarkable Musical Play at Shubert Theatre, Boston.

"Stellar" is an adjective that is much overused in the world of the theatre, but there are times when it is the one term which truthfully and faithfully represents the offering—and a brilliant example of these rare occasions is the Messrs. Shubert's newest musical play "Her Soldier Boy," which will make its metropolitan debut at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, next Monday evening, Oct. 23. Clifton Crawford, a truly stellar comedian; John Charles Thomas, by all odds the most brilliant of the young American baritones; Margaret Romaine, the gifted Utah soprano whose golden tones carried her to the forefront in Paris' grand opera—at the famous Opera Comique, Victor Leon, the author of "The Merry Widow," and the acknowledged star among Continental librettists; Emmerich Kolman, composer of "Snur" and "The Gay Hussars,"—Hungary's most eminent musical figure;—these are chief among the "annies" and superb abilities represented in this extraordinary production. Others, of but little, if any less striking value might be listed. There is Edna Johnson Young, author of "The Lottery Man," "Naughty Marietta" and many other prime successes, whose function in "Her Soldier Boy" has been to adapt the piece for our stage; there is Sigmund Romberg, composer of "Maid in America," and many other big musical hits, who has provided additional numbers,—but space forbids further detail. Nor should the fine supporting company be neglected, the lavish staging and costuming, the big, beauteous chorus and the symphonic orchestra under the baton of Augustus Irrett.

"Her Soldier Boy" combines skillfully the fun and sparkle of musical comedy with the charming romance and substantial quality of operetta. Its story of the way an adventure-seeking young American gets himself and those for whom he cares in—and then out—of complications that are amusing, or serious, is told with rare skill. In its one aspect it is a gay, merry story, while on the other it touches real drama and genuine human emotions. And the whole is set in a musical score of gorgeous color and charm full of alluring melodies, replete with fascinating Magyar warmth. It is to be noted, that the Boston engagement of "Her Soldier Boy" is a very limited one.

UP TO COMMISSION

Differences between the Milwaukee company of Manchester and the Boston & Maine railroad over switching charges will be considered by the public service commission at a hearing yesterday. The company and the railroad construe the tariff now in effect differently, the company contending that the minimum charge is $3 a car, while the railroad figures it at $1.60 a car.
